You can cope with Holiday blues

FRANKFORT - The holiday season is not joyous and bright for everyone. If you are among the people who would rather skip to Jan. 2, there are some steps you can take to make the holidays better.

"For people who are experiencing the loss of someone or something such as a loved one, a marriage or a job, the holidays can make the grief more intense. Other people who feel lonely, depressed or stressed may find that the holidays make the pain worse," said Edward Maxwell JR., M. D., clinical director of Kentucky's Department for Mental Health and Mental Retardation Services.

"In all of these scenarios, people can make changes or prepare for the holidays so that they can cope with their feelings."

Maxwell, an associate professor psychiatry at the University of Kentucky, said the normal feelings associated with a major loss such as anger, fear, confusion, loneliness, depression and anxiety often become accentuated during the holidays because it's suppose to be a happy, family oriented time." Even though celebrating the holidays is usually fun, it does strain your budget, time and family. When something has upset your life or you feel emotional pain, those stresses can be overwhelming," Maxwell said.

The first step is to accept your feelings. Then express them in a positive way through talking with others, writing in a journal, or through some other personally meaningful activity such as prayer, and then come up with a plan to ease the pressure.

"If you have had a major loss in your life this year, be aware that Christmas will not be the same, but it can still be meaningful. Do not isolate yourself. Try to participate in a social gathering or church, or spend time with other people who are lonely such as nursing home residents," Maxwell said. "Most importantly, focus on the real meaning of the holidays."

THE FUTURE OF HEATING—IS YOUR OWN BACKYARD

In a reserve bid auction, the seller reserves the right to place one last bid after the other bids are opened. In other words, the seller has a price below which he or she will not sell. Instead of announcing that price before the auction, it is common practice for the auctioneer to list the high and low end bids he or she expects to get. You can usually assume that the seller's reserve bid is about two-thirds of the lower estimate.

WHAT IS THE EDUCATIONAL PREPARATIONS FOR PHYSICAL THERAPISTS?

This is not a question answered easily or correctly by most individuals in today's society.

Physical therapists are college graduates, with such pre-requisite classes as psychology, biology, physics, statistics, chemistry, English, professional writing, and humanities. Once they have completed a well-rounded basic college education, it's time for them to apply to an accredited physical therapy program of choice.

If accepted into a physical therapy program, the student is extensively schooled in such fields as human anatomy and physiology, life span, neuroanatomy, and many other medically related courses. Within the program, the student will have many opportunities to apply and integrate classroom learned theories into practice through extensive clinical education offered through a variety of practical settings. "Clinicals" are scheduled periodically throughout the PT program for student in order to give them a large amount of hands on experience prior to graduation.

Depending upon the school chosen and the level of education of the program, the new graduate will have achieved a Bachelor's Degree or a Master's Degree in physical therapy. The opportunity is open to them at this time, to continue their education and obtain a PhD in physical therapy.

Finally, before beginning practice as a physical therapist, the individual must pass a licensing examination in the State in which they wish to practice, certifying them as a Licensed Physical Therapist. To be eligible for State licensing each year a Physical Therapist must complete accredited continuing education courses.

There is "much to learn" for the PT, and the educational process is forever ongoing, as this ensures quality patient care in the professional field of physical therapy. We at the Physical Therapy Centers of Ashland, Grayson, Wheelersburg, and South Shore are dedicated to providing each patient the most current therapy, thorough treatment, and highest quality of care.
