The Turing, a large group of nomads who live in the Sahara, are often called the Blue Men of the Desert, because they wear indigo-dyed robes which leave a blue color on their skin.

Boarding a bus to go home Tuesday afternoon, these Nicholas County students enjoyed getting together following the holidays.

Class was out for these Nicholas County High School students at 2:45 p.m. Tuesday, so why not watch the Blue Jackets practice?

UP, UP AND AWAY!

Plastic-foam balloons brighten any shirt!

GET READY...
• One child's T-shirt (color of choice)
• Scraps of plastic foam* red, blue and yellow (or colors of choice)
• Six 1/2" wiggly eyes
• Floss or curling ribbon (colors of choice)
• Six inches of Velcro* strip with adhesive backs
• One fine-line black permanent marker
• Thick craft glue
• Pencil, coin, tracing paper, scissors

*Fun Foam" by Westrim Crafts was used for this project.

GET SET...
• Place tracing paper over the pattern.
• Not intended for very young children (under three).
• If making for a younger child, use paint for eyes instead of wiggly eyes, and machine stitch or use jewel glue to secure balloons to shirt instead of Velcro.

GO!
1. Make the balloons. Place pattern, face down, on plastic foam. To transfer pattern onto foam, rub over pencil lines with coin. Cut out the balloon. Cut out two or more balloons in the same way. Glue two wiggly eyes onto each balloon over the eye marks. Use the black marker to trace over mouth and eyebrows. Cut floss or curling ribbon into varying lengths. Tie the two lengths to the bottom of each balloon and curl the ribbon with scissors.

2. Assemble the balloons. Cut Velcro into three 2" strips. Separate the soft strip from the hard side. After deciding where to place the balloons, peel off the backing from the soft strips. Center strips vertically onto the back of balloons and press. Press balloons onto shirt.

3. To Wash Shirt. Remove balloons if using Velcro. Turn shirt inside out. Wash in cold water. Hang to dry.

Option: Make balloons into magnets by gluing a one-inch magnetic strip to center backs of balloons.
