How will you be spending the Thanksgiving holiday?

"How will you be spending Thanksgiving, a minister from the area of the lovely women who lived a rouser from the church, but he enjoyed their visits. They had first met at a soup kitchen. They had each crossed out a community Thanksgiving service. He and his family were new to the area and came up to say, 'Hello.' That was when they realized they lived in the same neighborhood. She was a widow with no children and no surviving brothers or sisters. It was hard to tell her age. She was smiling, and interested in everything, she didn't call attention to age, nor did she. She did like to tell me stories from her young experiences, and some of these gave her away. He was about eighty years old. For six years or so, around the third week in November, he had asked her, 'How are you getting on?' 'I'm fine,' she had said. It had become a small ritual, they had shared a quiet humor and shared understanding. So far, the ways answered pretty much the same way. 'Well Reverend,' she would begin. 'I'll start the day by reading my psalm and my chapter. I'm not that fond of Nehemiah, but I'm looking forward to palm 53. 'Where morning dawn and evening fades you call me to prayer. You care for the land and water in it, you nurture it abundantly. The streams of God are filled with water to give people with grain, for I have ordered it.' That part about
