Never too old for dolls

By Roxanna Jolly
Staff Writer
It is necessary for one to be a child to have a love for dolls? This certainly isn't the case for one local woman, Betty Barton, who believes you must only be young at heart.
Barton first started collecting dolls in 1982 after retiring earlier that year from South Central Bell Telephone Company. She then started going to flea markets and yard sales where she found some very old and beautiful dolls for very little money. Barton commented "I really enjoy buying yard sale dolls and donating them on."

Scratching a living on a farm, getting married and playing cards with Jesse James and his family.
If Addie Hunt was alive today she would have some stories to tell, said her daughter Elizabeth Wilcoxson.
The Carlisle woman split her 93 years of living between Missouri and Kentucky before passing on in 1978.
She was only 15 when she met and married a Union Army sergeant, Harper Hunt. Harper was born in Bath

Dudley appointed to board

Tim Dudley, head of Golf Professionals at Woodson Bend Resort, has been chosen to serve on the 1996-1997 Economic Advisory Committee of Citizens National Bank.
He is among 25 local business leaders selected by the bank's CEO, Clay Parker Davis, to serve on the committee.
The committee provides input on the area business climate, lending their own personal knowledge and expertise.
The committee was first formed in 1990 to monitor economic trends.
Dudley is a former resident of Carlisle and is married to the former Teresa Nealis of Mt. Sterling.
They now live in Somerset where their son, Rob, was a member of the 1994 Somerset High School state champion golf team.
Rob is a freshman at Western Kentucky University where he is a member of the Western Kentucky Golf Team.

Remember the sacrifices Veteran salutes POW/MIA Day

By Harold Linville
Contributing Writer

As we commemorate National POW/MIA Recognition Day, it is appropriate that we remember the sacrifices made by those brave Americans who were taken prisoner and have since returned, and those who are listed as missing in action.
Today there are nearly ninety thousand U.S. servicemen still unaccounted for from World War II, Korea, and Vietnam.
Special days like today allow us some understanding of the terror and dedication to life that these great Americans endured in the service of their country.
Every person who has ever been in uniform and fought the battle understands the nature of war.
But we owe a special debt of respect and gratitude to those who were captured and yet still kept the faith. They did so while deprived of freedom and victimized by brutal tortures.
They were forced to bathe in only their captors, but the temptation to yield to self-pity and despair.
In the words of former POW,

Computer upgrades, field trips top school site council agenda

Whether to upgrade the Internet at Nicholas County High School and how to do it was among the debate of the school site council.
The council also approved several field trips at its Sept. 18 meeting.
High School Librarian Nida Foyman is requesting the board to update life Internet system on the school computer.
"Because the Internet is an evolving technology, hardware, software and network standards change, and we need to make every effort to remain current," she wrote in a letter to the council.
Among the upgrades she recommends are Sound Card with speakers, new CD-ROM drive, video drivers and Windows 95 software.
But committee members could not make up their minds on what the system did and did not need.
The topic was tabled for further research.
Requests for field trips were also on agenda.
The high school golf team is requesting to attend the 1996 Regional Golf Tournament Sept. 30 at Wessinger Country Club in Shelbyville. The team requested to spend the night.
High School science teacher Abby Green requested that her Advanced Biology Class attend a gross anatomy demonstration at the University of Kentucky on Sept. 26.
The class will travel with the Cardinal Child Care Class to save expenses.
Other field trip requests:
• The Special Education Department wants a trip to Kentucky Caverns on Nov. 11.
• Future Farmers of America plans a trip to the University of Kentucky for the FFA leadership conference on Oct. 2.
• Physics and precalculus students want to attend a math and physics day at Morehead State University on Oct. 2.
• The Media class plans a trip to WLEX-Channel 15 in Lexington.
All field trip requests were approved by the board.
In other action the council chose member Doug Beckman to serve as representative of the Nicholas County Family Resource and Youth Services advisory council.
They chose senior John Sparks as their student representative to the board.
