NCHS students say war last effort in Iraq dispute

By Leigh Stone
Managing Editor

Alexis Stone, Nicholas County High School students aren't in favor of sending U.S. troops to Iraq in the case of the latest tensions.

"Unless it's absolutely the only answer," Stone said. "Three NCHS students discussed the situation of Iraq preventing U.S. members of the United Nations from checking Iraq's chemical weapons facilities."

However, all three said since the U.S. doesn't stop them from war, Iraq shouldn't be allowed either.

"I think the U.S. should have prevented them from war," Stone said. "I don't think the U.S. should be the one to start a war."

Stone said that Iraq had been a platoon topic of discussion lately.

Robertson, an 18-year-old senior, didn't have a relative who served in the Gulf War. However, the desert Iraq should get away with keeping the U.S. out of UN inspection teams. "I wish they find another way to settle it rather than conflict," he said.

Robertson doesn't feel the death of Hussein would stop the action. "Probably not. There'd be somebody like him to take his place. He might be replaced."

Robertson said if war were the answer, he hoped it would only be considered if the U.S. were to the point of not turning back.

He said, like Robertson and Hunter, if chemical weapons were actually used by Iraq during the Gulf War.
