Natasha's Stars

ARIES (March 21 to April 19) You're not sure how to execute a certain task that arises in connection with work early in the week. Seek out advice from someone who has had a similar challenge and can help. Weekend socializing wears you out.

TAURUS (April 20 to May 20) Sift through social invitations and accept only those with which you are comfortable. If not, you could find yourself yawning through a terribly boring event, rife with dull people. Weekend domestic chores dominate your time.

GEMINI (May 21 to June 20) There's a lot of incredible talk going around concerning a proposed business venture. Although it sounds exciting, it doesn't amount to much in reality. Spend the weekend resting and studying up on your investment options.

CANCER (June 21 to July 22) You have too much going on all at once and need to simplify in order to be more effective. Tackle only one task at a time, starting with the most important. Partnership interests come to the fore this weekend.

LEO (July 23 to August 22) You're so put off by a misunderstanding with a loved one, you withdraw into yourself early in the week. This causes unnecessary hard feelings. Break out of your silence and reach out to this person.

VIRGO (August 23 to September 22) You're on the wrong track concerning someone's intentions for you. Generally, your intuition is good, but not this time. Avoid a tendency to jump to the wrong conclusions. A weekend social invitation is intriguing.

LIBRA (September 23 to October 22) Unfortunately, the key word for you is delay this week. Whether traveling or sticking to home base, you're tripped up when trying to achieve something. The weekend centers around a fascinating conversation.

SCORPIO (October 23 to November 21) The home front is a veritable beehive of activity as you flit from task to task this week. Enlist the cooperation of others and you can achieve more. Spend the weekend relaxing from your tiring exertions and admiring your handiwork.

SAGITTARIUS (November 22 to December 21) You're the life of the party, and your spending knows no bounds. However, you should try to exercise some restraint. You don't have to impress others by being a spendthrift. A minor spat arises this weekend with a loved one.

CAPRICORN (December 22 to January 19) It's one little thing after another to get in the way of what you want to do this week. Perhaps it's best to put these tasks off for a more auspicious time. Your budget ideas are sound and should be followed.

AQUARIUS (January 20 to February 18) Plans you'd made previously are subject to mix-ups this week. Don't let this disappoint you. There's plenty you can get done around the home front. A weekend phone call brings exciting financial news.

PISCES (February 19 to March 20) An argument erupts this week with your significant other over a financial concern. However, you have right on your side and should stick to your point as diplomatically as possible. Trust your instincts.

Water spiders live underwater in airtight silk nests. There they eat, molt, mate and raise families.

by Diane Van Arsdale

Dear Diane

DEAR DIANE:

I always read your column in The Weston Democrat (W.Va.), and I surely enjoy your answers.

Here's a short background up to my question: My husband and I live side by side in separate houses. He's retired and I still work. This has been the situation for five years or so.

Two years ago, I moved back in with him, thinking we could get our marriage back on track. It didn't work. He was anxious for me to move back into my own house, and he didn't want to live with me. However, he still wants to control me in every way and you know what that means.

Here's my question: What would you consider my marital status to be when we don't live together, and each of us is self-sufficient?

FED UP

DEAR FED UP:

As far as I can see, you're married in name only. However, as to the legalities of your situation, I suggest you see a lawyer. Some states have laws which state something to the effect that if a husband and wife have lived apart for a year, they can divorce on the basis of "abandonment." I don't see why you would want to remain in this loveless, empty situation.

One thing concerns me. You said, "...he still wants to control me ... and you know what that means." My question to you is, does this man physically abuse you? If so, I suggest you get help from the police. They can give you the name and number of a women's support group for battered wives. If you're being abused, you need help to get out of this situation. Please write back and let me know what's happening. I'll be waiting to hear.
