City Council shows little support for juvenile curfew

By Leigh Stone
Managing Editor

Carlisle won't have a juvenile curfew ordinance after all.

City Council expressed concern about the leniency of such an ordinance, which was brought up at last month's meeting by Mayor Ronnie Clark.

The mayor said he'd received complaints about juveniles making noise in the city out past midnight.

However, as school began in August, he has received fewer complaints. He has, surprisingly he said, received support of an ordinance from some clergy.

"It seems to be a little quieter. School's gone back and it's a little quieter in town," the mayor commented.

"You've got good kids and some bad ones in this town," remarked Council member Tommy Vaughn. As the mayor prepared to ask for a straw vote, Attorney Skip Watson distributed the juvenile ordinance for the city of Paris.

"I just don't want to spend $500 or $500 on attorney's fees if there's no support for this," the mayor explained about his request for the straw vote. Only Vaughn said he'd be for an ordinance outright but tempered his comments with "I don't want to hurt our good kids."

The straw vote idea died for lack of a second.

Council member Sandra Ritchie said she'd have to determine if the ordinance were lenient enough.

"Is there any reason why we should have juveniles running around at 12 to 1 in the morning?"
Mayor Ronnie Clark

Libby Earlywine commented, "They need something to do. We're blessed. We're really blessed."

But Earlywine's main concern was the city's policemen didn't wind up being "babysitters." But Vaughn said they were paid to uphold the law and that included a juvenile curfew.

The mayor asked, "Is there any reason why we should have juveniles running around at 12 to 1 in the morning? That's where it needs to be to tied back to the parents."

Vaughn agreed the parents should be responsible for their children.

City Clerk Mary Tapp said the city's old juvenile ordinance was done away with because it required the straw vote. Only Vaughn said he'd be for an ordinance outright but tempered his comments with "I don't want to hurt our good kids."

Ritchie commented, "Once they're 18 and can be in the service now we need to clarify it at 17 or younger."

Council member Frankie Hughes asked the mayor what the police would do if juvenile girls were detained by officers. The mayor replied he didn't think it was a good idea to allow juvenile females to be on the street after certain hours, either.

The mayor concluded his bid for the curfew by stating, "We'll let it ride another month. I don't want to do it if the support isn't there."

• In other action, council agreed to help a city resident deter pigeons. The mayor said a device with a loud, banging noise will be used to hopefully make the birds leave town. Birds have congregated in the Locust and Sycamore Street areas leaving droppings.

The proceeds from the sale will help put new swings and other equipment in at East End Park. Volunteers are needed for the park cleanup set Sept. 27. Call 289-7085 for more information about helping.

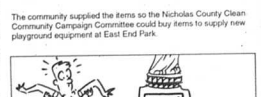
Community yard sale helps East End Park

The community supplied the items so the Nicholas County Clean Community Campaign Committee could buy items to supply new playground equipment at East End Park.



The earliest known sculptures date to the Aurignacian culture of 28,000 to 22,000 B.C. and include so-called Venus figurines from Austria and numerous figurines from northern Italy and central France.

Water District to raise rates to support new lines

By Leigh Stone
Managing Editor

More water lines will be installed in Nicholas County but to meet the demands of the loan, the Nicholas County Water District must issue a rate increase.

The increase of $1.94 for the minimum bill, from $11.96 to $13 for 0 to 1,000 gallons, goes into effect upon approval of the rate by the Public Service Commission, stated water district manager Boogie Hall.

Jim Simons, chairman of the Nicholas County Water District, said on Monday, "This puts in 28 miles of water lines in Nicholas County and adds approximately 125 customers who are, according to the water samples, in desperate need of pure water."

The needs survey was done by Bluegrass Area Development District. Bluegrass ADD also had water samples taken.

The new lines will be laid across the northern part of the county, Licking River at Blue Licks, Sugar Creek, Old U.S. 68, Persimmon Ridge, Hollar Road, Stoney Creek, and Short Stoney.

"Construction bids were let a week ago so there's a possibility of construction by Oct. 1. An Owingsville, Ky., firm, D. F. Bailey, Inc., got the bid," Simons said.

BACKGROUND

This is Phase IV of the county's ongoing water project. According to Hall, "bids for the Nicholas County Water District System Extension Project #4 were received on Aug. 26, 1997 at 2 p.m. at the Nicholas County County Courthouse in the Fiscal Courtroom. Bids were opened and read aloud by Joe Sisler, project engineer of the Central Associated Engineers Inc. Lexington, Ky. All members of the water district were present along with County Judge Executive Chuck Smith and Doug Rigsby of the Bluegrass Area Development District.

"A total of 12 bids were received on Contract #4 water line extension. A tentative notice of award went to D. F. Bailey Inc., conditioned upon approval by Rural Development, Bluegrass ADD (Community Development Block Grant) and the Public Service Commission."

Hall's statement further explained, "Phase IV water in the extension project will supply potable water into the outlying areas of Northern Nicholas County. This was made possible due to a new source of water supply from Buffalo Trace Water Association. Phase IV distribution system expansion involves the installation of approximately 28 miles of rural water line extension in the Nicholas County Water District to serve 113 new signed customers.

A six-inch transmission line will connect Buffalo Trail Water Association near State Route 165 through Blue Licks Battlefield State Park to a master meter vault east of the Licking River.

"Funding for the Phase IV extension is being provided through a:

• Community Development Block Grant in the amount of $519,640.

• Rural Development Grant in the amount of $247,000.

• Nicholas County Fiscal Court in the amount of $10,000.

• Tap fees in the amount of $16,100.

4 out of 5 children improperly buckled

FRANKFORT - As a conscientious parent, you always put your child in a car seat or buckled in a seat belt when riding in a motor vehicle.

But this may be giving you a false sense of security.

Four out of five American children who are in car seats or seat belts are not correctly buckled up.

A 1996 Kentucky survey backs up the national data that most car seats are not being used correctly. The 1996 safety belt usage survey by the Kentucky Transportation Center and the Kentucky State Police indicates that 79 percent of the children under four years of age were restrained. That's the good news.

But the bad news is that doing child safety check points in various areas of the state in 1996, about 65 percent of parents and other caregivers were using the restraints improperly.

"That's a scary thought, especially for parents who put their children in safety seats or seat belts every time. They think they've done everything possible to keep their child safe but in reality a majority of those devices are not secured properly. This is a message that parents or any adult who transports children need to hear and act on," said Patty Sewell, coordinator of the Kentucky SAFE KIDS Coalition in the Kentucky Department for Public Health.

The most common mistakes are using the wrong car seat for the child's age or size, not securing the car seat correctly in the vehicle, and not using a locking clip when it is needed.

Sewell says that parents often do not know how to use a car seat correctly or they get in a hurry and do it the wrong way.

During the National SAFE KIDS Buckle Up campaign, adults are encouraged to educate themselves about using a safety seat or seat belt for a child correctly. As part of the campaign, parents can go to a participating GM dealership to get child passenger safety information and hands-on experience about the proper installation and use of car seats and safety belts.

In addition, parents can call toll-free 1-800-441-1888 to get a free video and brochure with car seat and safety belt information.

SAFETY TIPS

• People should not buy or sell used child safety seats unless they can make sure they meet the "Used Child Safety Seat Checklist" from the National Highway Traffic Safety Administration. The checklist is available from the Kentucky State Police.

• Child Safety Seats should have a label saying it was manufactured after Jan. 1, 1981 and meets all federal Motor Vehicle Safety Standards. Call 1-800-424-9893 to see if the seat has been recalled for a safety defect.

• Never put an infant in the front seat of a vehicle with a passenger air bag.

• If you absolutely have to put an older child in the front seat with a passenger air bag, remember to secure the child properly in the correct restraint - move the front seat as far back form the dashboard as possible and never allow the child to lean toward the dashboard.

• Children up to one year old and 20 pounds should be in a rear-facing car seat because this is the best protection of their necks and heads.

• Children more than one-year-old and over 20 pounds should be in a forward-facing car seat.

• A booster seat should be used with children between 4-8 years old and between 40-80 pounds.

• For children 8 years and older and more than 80 pounds, a lap-shoulder belt is needed.

Another disturbing statistics is that 40 percent of the U. S. children are not secured in a car seat or seat belt at all. While the percentage in Kentucky is higher, there are still many children not properly restrained. KSP issued 1,888 tickets to motorists in 1996 for not having a child in a car seat.

The number one killer of children in the U.S. is motor vehicle crashes.

NOTICE

The City will be flushing fire hydrants the week of September 15 to 19. Flushing will begin at the West end of town and end at East end. Customers may experience rusty or muddy looking water, but it should clear up in a couple of days.
