Bought With Great Sacrifice
By: Albert W. Sweazy

President Abraham Lincoln made a most inciteful statement in the address he delivered at Gettysburg. He said, "from these honored dead, we take increased devotion to the cause for which they gave the last full measure of devotion. That we here highly resolve that these honored dead shall not have died in vain."

I never read these words but what I think of all those who died their blood and gave their lives to preserve the cause of freedom in our land alone.

This called to remembrance, all the young men whom I knew in my school days, who had to go to war. I thought of the many invasions where some lost their lives. I sat one evening and recalled thirty of my friends whom I knew, had paid the last full measure of devotion. I am sure there were many more, of whom I was not aware.

These thoughts have surfaced in my mind since it will not be long until we celebrate Memorial Day.

We have an advantage in America, for I believe we still have a Nation dedicated to the sanctity of human life. However, there are seemingly many people who have no respect for the lives of others. That is a tragedy of life. This reveals the way a person reacts to others. Some abuse, by using weapons to inflict their will unfairly on others, which is observed in every walk of life.

The tragedy at Oklahoma City is a dreadful reminder of inhumanity and lack of sensitivity relative to the sanctity of life.

Historical perspective indicates our sacredness of life that has brought about the practice of decorating the graves of those who have departed this life. This meaningfully expresses to everyone the care and attention given at The Tomb of the Unknown Soldier in Washington, DC at Arlington National Cemetery.

I stood one afternoon on a hill over-looking Pearl Harbor in Hawaii. The scene was the National Cemetery that was the burial ground of those who killed at Pearl Harbor.

I found it very hear-rendering to stand there at the graveside of a boy-hood friend who was a casualty in the bombing of the Harbor. As young boys, we dreamed dreams together about the future. His great ambition was to become a Pharmacist with his own Drug Store. He realized that due to the depression and belonging to a large family, his best opportunity to realize his goal was to join the Navy and try for a Pharmacist Mate, which he did. He volunteered for the Navy after he graduated from High School in 1936.

The day I stood before the cross marking his resting place, I read Charles S. Smith, Pharmacist Mate 1st Class. It gave me some satisfaction knowing that he had reached a portion of his dream, but not short of total realization at the age of 23.

As I stood there in that sacred place, I recalled his hopes and dreams and our friendship as Classmates. As the warm Trade Winds passed gently over me, and through the crosses row on row, I felt close to my friend in those fleeting moments. Due to the gift of memory, I was renewed as I felt the winds of yesterdays and years blow gently through my mind.

We need in this Nation a religious epidemic that is highly contagious and convincing. The Historical Jesus must become the Jesus of ever day living and experience, reflected through HIS SPIRIT, HIS LOVE, HIS SACRIFICE, AND THE HOPE HE GIVES.

As I stood at the graveside of my friend and looked at many crosses, I realized there had to be more than just remembering their acts of heroism, but their sacrifice must be satisfied.

I used to look at the map of the world with little thought of it's meaning, but then as I began to visit islands in the Pacific, a new understanding came to me. Originally, I saw these islands as tiny dots, but then I realized that those dots represented grounds of sacrifice of our honored dead. This brought more meaning to me.

I was the small dot representing two Jims. One day, when driving through the Cemetery at Blaseville, Kentucky, I saw a beautiful monument placed there by grateful friends. It was the grave of PFC. Franklin Sousley, United States Marine Corps. He was one of the young men who helped to raise the flag at two Jima. He was killed later in the ongoing up campaign in the same area.

He was 18 years of age. In the famous picture of the Marines raising the flag, he is the second from the end, on the left.

The day I stood at his grave and beautiful monument on a small hill in Fleming County, Kentucky, many thoughts passed through my mind. I thought, "here lies the remains of a young man who was just beginning to rise on his tip toes of youth, but called upon to give the last full measure of devotion to his Country." I was present the day that his remains were returned to his native soil.

As I stood alone at his grave about two years ago, there was not a sound except the song birds that were beautiful to hear. I also felt an occasional breeze pass gently over the grave. I thought, surely, this nature keeping constant vigil over this young hero."

Where I stood felt, like holy ground, so I slipped my shoes, in honor and gratitude for a young man who paid his last full measure of devotion. On that day, that he represented to me all of those who also gave, and the families who lost so much in the giving.

I slipped my shoes on again to walk with new determination to live to help make an difference in our land for freedom. It was a beautiful day of remembrance for all those who have passed beyond this vale of tears, unto the ONE who has wiped away all tears from their eyes.

LEST WE FORGET!

JMHC talks about estrogen therapy and menopause effects on women

Public Service article from: D&R Pharmacare and Nicholas County Hospital

On average, women today will live 30 years after menopause without the benefits of natural estrogen.

A few women, about 15-18 percent, are prescribed estrogen by their doctors after menopause because of certain benefits.

But their are some issues to discuss with your doctor before beginning estrogen therapy.

Estrogen replacement has many benefits.

They prevent the unpleasant symptoms of menopause (hot flashes, night sweats, nausea, etc.) as well as providing women protection against osteoporosis and heart disease.

However, estrogen replacement therapy is not for all women.

Those at serious risk factors for breast cancer (your doctor will know) may not be good candidates for estrogen replacement.

Effects on the heart: Estrogen works to lower total cholesterol and low-density lipoprotein (LDL or "bad cholesterol) and increases high density cholesterol (HDL or "good" cholesterol).

This action protects women from heart disease.

This is especially beneficial in women with risk factors for heart disease, such as high blood pressure, high cholesterol, and diabetes.

Effects on bones: Estrogen can protect against osteoporosis and fractures.

It helps keep bones strong and reduces the accelerated bone loss menopause causes.

Cancer: Prolonged use of estrogen, about 20 years, can increase risk for breast cancer by 25 percent.

Taking estrogen for shorter periods (five or less years) does not cause as serious an increase in breast cancer risk.

Estrogen acts to increase the growth of the cells in the uterine lining.

This increased growth can increase risk for endometrial cancer eight-fold when estrogen is taken for long periods of time.

However, the risk is much less when a progestin is taken along with estrogen.

Risk vs. Benefit: Estrogen replacement is definitely a topic that all women should discuss with their physician.

For some, the risk of certain types of cancer will certainly outweigh the benefits of estrogen.

For these women, new estrogen-like therapies may be available to protect against osteoporosis and heart disease.

But, for women with high risk for heart disease or osteoporosis combined with a low risk of breast cancer, estrogen replacement could serve a great benefit now and later in life.

Osteoporosis
Can It Happen to You?

This BONE - THINNING DISEASE can cause serious breaks of the hip, spine, and wrist.

ARE YOU AT RISK? Answer these questions

QUESTION	YES	NO
1. Do you have a small, thin frame or are you Caucasian or Asian?	☐	☐
2. Has a female member of your immediate family broken a bone as an adult?	☐	☐
3. Are you a postmenopausal woman?	☐	☐
