KIRIS RESULTS FOR NICHOLAS COUNTY STUDENTS

Phyllis Ramey
Instructional Supervisor
Nicholas County Schools

The results are in! The staffs of Nicholas County Elementary and Nicholas County High School and the staff at Nicholas County Central Office have been studying the results of KIRIS, Kentucky Instructional Results Information System, to determine what improvements need to be made to increase our students' scores.

In the past few years, schools have been required to administer the KIRIS as the assessment tool, but the Kentucky Department of Education required that schools give an additional test this past year. The Kentucky National Reference Assessment was administered to the students at the end of primary and students in grades 6 and 9. Nicholas County students completed the reading, language, and mathematics survey editions of the CTBS/5. The item format was multiple choice and took approximately two hours to administer. These tests measure student achievement in the content areas and progress toward objectives consistent with the goals of KIRIS. The CTBS/5 results provide a useful profile of students' instructional strengths and weaknesses as well as traditional comparisons with national norms. Our scores on all grade levels tested showed that our national percentile scores were in the average range and no scores were below the average range. (The average range is defined as the middle 50 percent of students' scores nationally.) The results also tell us if students have non-mastery, partial mastery, or mastery of objectives. Our students ranked in the partial mastery as did the national reference group.

The KIRIS is made up of four parts

KIRIS On-Demand open-response testing at grades 4, 5, 7, 8, and 11
KIRIS Writing Portfolio at grades 4, 7, and 12
KIRIS Alternate Portfolio at grades 4, 8, and 12 (or age-equivalents)
The noncognitive index

This index includes

- attendance and retention at the elementary level
- attendance, retention, and dropout rates at the middle school level

The Kentucky Department of Education did not assign a performance level (Novice, Apprentice, Proficient, or Distinguished) to any of the schools in Kentucky this year because this is the midpoint of the 2 year cycle. The students in the 4th and 5th grades showed some improvement in some content areas: "The Mathematics, writing, and social studies scores showed a decline in 1996-97. The scores in arts and humanities showed a significant decline. The scores for the 7th and 8th grade students did show some improvement over the 1995-1996 scores. One of our goals is to move students out of novice level and we haven't moved enough students out of that level to show much improvement. Our performance level for this cycle will be based on the 1996-97 scores and the 1997-98 scores. The Nicholas County Elementary Performance Level will be determined by combining the scores for the students in 4th, 5th, 7th, and 8th grades

Before the 1996-1997 assessment, the Nicholas County High School had shown some improvement, but had not shown enough improvement to get out of the Improving category. Therefore, we were classified as Improving Category 2 at the end of the last cycle. But the test scores for 1996-97 showed major improvements in every content area. According to some calculations the high school scores improved 113% and the school was ranked 16th in the state. We were classified as Improving Category 2 at the end of the last cycle. The 9th grade students who took the Kentucky National Reference Assessment in reading, language, and math scored in the average range of scores. No scores were above average and none were below average. Partial mastery was reached in all areas

Both schools have been working very hard to improve the assessment scores this year. Of course, we don't know what is going to happen with KIRIS and the Kentucky Legislature makes a decision. We are watching what is going on in Frankfort very carefully, but the staffs at both schools in Nicholas County are planning for the tests to be taken in April and for portfolios to be completed and scored. The staffs are planning for more improvement in the final results. They have spent many, many extra hours after school planning and working on teaching strategies as well as motivational strategies to help the students. Whatever the outcome, we want to be able to say that we gave it our best effort.

1 KIRIS results and Kentucky National Reference Assessment results are published elsewhere in the paper 1
