Sharpsburg water district urges conservation

Due to unusually dry conditions the Sharpsburg Water District is asking all of its customers to voluntarily conserve water.

Water storage capacity has been depleted because of high daily water usage. We are asking that you restrict non-essential use of water; such as filling of pools, washing cars, and watering lawns.

Also our truck loading station has been shut down until we can keep storage tanks full.

County water district announces shortage

We have been notified by the City of Carlisle that due to dry weather during the month of August and the beginning of September, the City of Carlisle has declared a Water Shortage Advisory.

There is an IMMEDIATE need to begin voluntarily conserving water.

We appreciate your cooperation, Nicholas County Water District.

Letters to the Editor

The Editor:

The Kentucky Children's Home Homecoming Committee want to extend an invitation to everyone who was ever a resident of the home to our Annual Reunion. Thousands of children were given refuge at the home. Many, since the home's inception in 1895 have passed on, but Kentucky Children's Home was in operation until the early 1970's and many are still living throughout the world.

Our hope is that with the help of those working in the news media, such as yourself, this message will reach each of these people who, as children, found sanctuary at Kentucky Children's Home.

This year's Homecoming will be Saturday, Sept. 19 on Kentucky Children's Home grounds, 8711 LaGrange Road, Lyndon, KY.

Former residents and employees of KCH may contact the following people for further information.

Deer permit mislabeled

If you are a landowner and already received your new landowner deer permits for the 1998-99 deer hunting season, take a close look at them.

One of the landowner permits was mislabeled. It was labeled "Antlered deer only". It should be labeled "Anterless deer only". The tag is not valid for antlered deer. A correct permit has two sections — one for any deer and one for anterless deer only.

Landowners who received a mislabeled permit may use it for anterless deer by marking out the words "antlered deer only" and writing "anterless deer only" on the tag. Or, landowners can receive a correct tag from any vendor after the mistake has been corrected.

The free landowner deer permit was put into effect for the first time this year. In the past, landowners simply made their own tags and attached them to the deer they took. Officials with the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources hope that these permits will help provide a more accurate summary of the deer harvest in Kentucky.

Eagelstone Farm has bulls listed nationally

Eaglestone Farm, Carlisle, Ky., owns two bulls featured in the 1998 Fall Sire Evaluation Report published by the American Angus Association. They are quartered in St. Joseph, MO.

Issued in both the spring and fall, the new report features the latest performance available on more than 5,527 sires.

"The American Angus Association has the most complete and comprehensive beef cattle database in the world," says John Crouch, American Angus Association director of performance programs.

"Of the sires listed in the main report, 51 percent have expected progeny differences (EPDs) for carcass traits, which should assist cattlemen in choosing genetics that will produce a more consistent, higher quality beef product." EPDs are generated from performance data submitted by breeders through the Angus Herd Improvement Records (AHIR) program.

Traits in which EPD's are available include birth weight, weaning weight, milk, yearling weight and height, mature daughter weight and height, and scrotal circumference, as well as carcass traits including carcass weight, marbling, rib eye area, external fat thickness and percent retail product. The sire evaluation analysis for the sire evaluation report is conducted at Iowa State University, by Dr. Doyle E. Wilson and Dr. Joerg Dodenhoff.

Leased fields provide good dove-hunting opportunity

Dove hunting season got underway September 1 and this year looks like a great one for the sport. "Doves had good reproduction and crop maturation appears to be on time," says Rocky Pritchett, a migratory Bird Program Coordinator for the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources (KDFWR). These factors contribute to a higher concentration of doves, especially during the first segment of the season.

According to Pritchett, there's one other factor that proves to make this year's dove season better than the last. That is increased opportunity for the sportsman. Eight doves fields were leased by the KDFWR for public dove hunting this year.

The fields, located in Allen, Barren, Mercer, Shelby, Spencer and Todd counities, were leased from private landowners for public dove hunting rights. They were planted with sunflowers, millet and other crops specifically for attracting doves. Landowners who lease these fields to the KDFWR will receive $500 for hunting rights this fall.

Landowners interested in enrolling their land in the dove field lease program should contact their local KDFWR biologist or call 1-800-858-1549 to get more information. Fields planted next spring specifically for dove hunting can generate as much as $2,500 for the landowner when leased to the KDFWR.

Youth waterfowl day announced

Carry on the tradition of waterfowl hunting by introducing a young hunter to the sport. Oct. 10 is Youth Waterfowl Day.

Muskie tourney begins on Friday

Crashs' Landing, Inc will hold its grand opening at Cave Run Lake Sept. 12-13.

Among the highlights will be: three Ranger boats and a Farve-Volunteer Fire Department engine on display; and live bluegrass music featuring Marvin Carroll and the Bluegrass Ambassadors, at 6 p.m.

On that day, youth under the age of 16 can try their hand at hunting ducks, coots and mergansers. The day applies statewide and participants must be accompanied by an adult 18 years or older. Only the youth may hunt.

Youth Waterfowl day was designed to give youngsters a chance to experience duck hunting while giving them a good chance i take some ducks. Youth waterfowl day takes place before the weather gets terribly cold, which might deter some first time hunters from returning to the sport. It also takes place before the statewide season, therefore giving youngsters a shot at undisturbed birds. For more information cal the Kentucky Department of Fish and Wildlife Resources at 1-800-858-1549.

The Kentucky Silver Muskie Club fishing tournament begins on Friday, Sept. 11.
