Austin named President of Bluegrass Tomorrow

Stephen D. Austin has been named as the new president of Bluegrass Tomorrow, Board Chairman Dr. Robert Borkin announced recently. Austin, a Lexington resident has extensive experience in planned growth, including working as City Planner for Georgetown/Soot County. He will take over the reins of the organization on February 1, 2000.

Austin is married to the former Meg Conley, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph H. "Jack" Conley of Carlisle. He is also the artist who drew the Nicholas County Historical Society sketches for the Historical Society's Bicentennial Calendar. In addition to his professional credits, Austin is a graduate of the University of Kentucky College of Landscape Architecture, where he received national recognition for his work in designing the area's rural character and natural environment.

According to Borkin, the organization conducted a comprehensive search to locate the best person for the position. "Stephen is eminently qualified with his background in land-use planning, the law and landscape architecture," Borkin said. "I am extremely excited about becoming the next president of Bluegrass Tomorrow," Austin said. "I look forward to leading the organization into the new millennium, one in which Bluegrass Tomorrow can provide the planning and leadership to ensure that our values as a region are respected and enhanced."

MAKING FAMILY LIFE MORE FUN E-connected For All Seasons

(NAPS)—A growing number of families have found that staying connected during the holidays can be easy even when they are separated by long distances. The families are using their computers through a new kind of Internet community called LifeTimes.com.

"HAPPY HOLIDAY SON, WE MISS YOU!"

A new internet site is bringing families together to celebrate special occasions. One feature allows the user to insert his or her voice into an electronic greeting card.

The site is built around celebrating special occasions. It provides tools that allow users to fill everyone in on the year's family news, design a customized Holiday Letter to fit a family's unique personality, or create a Talking Egg by adding your voice to online greetings. The site, which is free, is just one more incentive for people to add a creative touch to the festive season.

With Circles, the site can help a family make holiday preparations, keep track of busy travel schedules, share recipes and let everyone know what's on their gift wish lists.

LifeTimes.com also offers an unusual array of more than 200 gifts, not commonly found in retail stores or other Web shopping sites. The original gifts include ornaments to cookies, candies and cakes.
