Where's The Stash Of Cash You Didn't Know You Had?
(NAPS)—If you had an unexpected financial need, where would you turn for cash? When asked in a new Bank One study how they would obtain $10,000 to meet an unexpected expense, 25 percent of homeowners said they would use a personal loan and 22 percent would dip into savings. Only 9 percent said they would obtain a home equity loan.
The truth is, equity in your home can be as tangible as money in the bank. For people who item-ize, interest paid on home equity loans is usually tax deductible, making it one of the lowest after-tax cost options for borrowing to pay for a major expense.
"If you find yourself in need of a sum of money, whether it's to renovate your home or consolidate debt, a home equity loan can be a very smart financial tool," said Jordan Goodman, personal finance expert and author of the best selling Everyone's Money Book.
Goodman pointed out that, along with those who don't realize the benefits of home equity loans, many mistakenly think that the home equity application process is a difficult and lengthy one.
But we discovered that of the many different home equity providers in the industry today, Bank One sets itself apart with its 50/50 program, which makes the home equity application process easy.
