Wal-Mart awards $5,000 grant for forest projects

The Wal-Mart Foundation presented a check for $5,000 through their Environmental Ranger Program to the Morehead State University Forest Ranger District to fund a wetland restoration project in the Cave Run Lake area.

"We are proud to be a part of the effort," said Matt Luckmiller, Wal-Mart manager of the Morehead store.

The Forest Service is working with the Kentucky Division of Forestry and the East Kentucky Correctional Complex at West Liberty to clean up the waste site.

Students from Morehead State University will help design and restore the wetland area. Students from Menifee County along with Boy and Girl Scouts will build waterfowl nest boxes, goose nesting structures, and rocket style ball roosting boxes for the project.

"These structures will be placed near the wetlands to provide habitat for wood ducks, herons, and other birds," said Matt Luckmiller. "We are excited to be a part of this project, along with the other volunteers who are helping to restore the area."

The project will clean up two dumpsites and restore
