The Face of the Future

Ask a farmer why they grow burley tobacco and the answer will probably be, because that's what their families have relied on to feed them for generations. There's a pride in their land and burley tobacco is a product that enjoys world-wide demand. Most burley is grown on small, family-owned farms that could be devastated without tobacco.

For decades, the Burley Price Support Program and auction system has helped tobacco growers support their family farms and their communities. The Program keeps tobacco prices stable and ensures our farming families are able to continue growing burley, a crop world renowned for its superior quality.

The Burley Price Support Program. A program that works for everyone.
