Much ado about nothing

"To post or many portate is the question..."
What's the big deal with the Ten Commandments being in the courthouse?
You see them in many places besides the courthouse everyday nyway. I can't count the number At least I think that those ittle blue and white signs

The writing on them i really small and, oh yeah, I'm too busy DRIVING. Everybody knows OF the

I even sported a 10 ommandments t-shirt Commandments t-shirt waaaaaaay back in . elementary school when the big 10 were first removed from schools. I had them in all the colors - red, blue and reen.

I personally did not notice tem hanging in the ourthouse until all this popla started.

oopla started.

And I really couldn't care
ess if they're posted of not.

I know it's a constitutional issue, but it's

Constitutional issue, but it's very, low on my priorities list of things to worry about. But I've also come to the realization, that because of the area we live in, I expect a certain amount of religion throughout my daily life.

And before you go saying that I'm some kind of godless heathen, I'm not.

To mint saying that I

I'm just saying that I argument and have come to the conclusion that both les should just either lighten way up or just agree And stop tying up my tax frivolous lawsuits.

.Do you think the county i made of money? The last time I checked the news, we're in a recession folks. We've just become an entire society of tattle-tales and suit-happy people.

Can't we all just get along?

with all the more important events going on in the world, I can't believe County are so upset and still quarreling over something as int-picky as the Ten Commandments house. As much as I dike to avoid it, however, I am compelled to throw my opinion into the fray.

Tourity are so upset and still make no law respecting an establishment freligion, or prohibiting the free exercise there was the terms, that means that while the government cannot keep individuals from displaying religious from the government cannot keep individuals from displaying religious from the displayed on government property.

By all means, display the government cannot keep individuals from displaying religious wevernment to be displayed on government property.

By all means, display the government and the government cannot keep individuals from displaying religious government property.
