Better uses for MSU money

I received a letter in the mail this morning from a "concerned (non-golfing) faculty member" at Morehead State University, Morehead State University, regarding the closing of lickory Pointe's golf course. The letter was not signed and listed no name, but I would like to share some points made by the writer, who says he/she takes offense to the university using tax money lo operate its golf course.

I agree.
The letter was in response to a story I wrote about Hickory Pointe's golf course closing for the Friday, March 16 edition

In the story, one of the co-owners of Hickory Pointe's course stated that one of the biggest reasons for its closing was the fact that MSU did not close its course as was promised. Successive the course of the biggest reasons of the course as was difficult to compete with the state's tax-sponsored operation of the university's course, and when you're a quotes from the letter I received Monday: "It's a sad day in Kentucky when a public university chooses to spend nentucky when a public university chooses to spend taxpayers' money to compete against local, small, private businesses rather than spending it on badly needed-improvements for campus infrastructure.

Here are a few direct

badly needed-improvements for campus infrastructure, classroom buildings, faculty salaries and the education of Kentucky's young people. "When will the university be required to account for the money that has been used to prop up its own faltering golf course? Which faltering golf course? Which come diverted and officerely affected to keep this course running, to the detriment of local, private enterprise?

"MSU should be more concurned about how it's going to operate on a reduced budget next year reduced budget next year than spending money on a golf course that has never made money, never will and only exists to compete with and discourage local, private business."

Where are non-golfers' v refunds from MSU? Dear Mother I'm sorry I haven't written Children are a precious gift from God, but they don't always perform or act in a manner we would like for them to.

As parents, we want the best for our children and in most cases have high expectations of them. A good case in point is the story about a college girl who wrote her mother the following letter:

ecountable for our actions. If accountable for our actions. If we short change ourselves in taking full advantage of life's opportunities, we are the ones who ultimately suffer the consequences. The message here is simple. Let's make sure we do our best to take advantage of our opportunities when we have the chance. In when we have the chance. In many cases, real opportunity only knocks once. To make sure our ship comes in, we must first make sure we have sent one out. A good education

Sorry I haven't written.

On a day by day basis, how we view our circumstances life is often a matter of perspective and five time that could be repetially. I began to reflect or this story, I began to reflect on it, and a couple of observations came to mind. Everything is relative, and only when we have the common sense to place things in perspective are we able to properly deal with them. When you think about that daughter away at college — in all likelihood at her
