'100TH FROM FRONT

and teachers braved the cold, gusty wind and gathered on the baseball field near the high school for the big event. The students were also treated with a visit from the superintendent, principal and assistant principal.

Each balloon had a tag tied to the end of each string containing the name of one of the first graders along with the address to write to.

As the big moment approached, a couple of the balloons escaped from hands and at 1 p.m. the rest of the balloons were released and quickly floated out of sight as the wind picked up.

At 2 p.m. the students gathered in the hallway for one of the last 100th day events - popping 100 balloons, generally blown up by one of the fourth grade classes.

The students decorated t-shirts containing 100 items, and it was left up to the students what to put on their shirts. One student had 100 Army men, while another glued 100 puppet eyeballs on their shirt.

Even the teachers got into the act.

Ms. Ball decorated a shirt with 100 band-aids and teacher's aide Helen Stamp, affectionately known as "Miss Helen," wore a shirt with 100 packets of Smarties candy pinned to it. Ms. Ball even baked a cake for the students shaped like the number 100.

Kids like it when "they get involved," Stamp said.

The ideas for the activities came from the Internet, but that everyone, including teachers and parents chipped in to make the day fun, Ms. Ball said.

Ms. Ball said that all the 100 items tied with math and, with the cooperation of the other teachers, she related the students' art, music, gym and computer classes.

"It was well worth it," Ball said. "They thoroughly enjoyed it."

Farmers may participate in study

Kentucky farmers will have the opportunity to "let their voice be heard" in participating in the 2001 Agricultural Resource Management Study. This study provides vital statistics about the economic condition of production agriculture. Most importantly, these statistics are used by members of the agricultural community and their legislators when making important decisions that impact the future of America's farmers and ranchers.

Data collected from Kentucky producers will present the only objective, true picture of the financial well-being of Kentucky farm operators and will be the last financial picture presented to Congress as they begin work on the next Farm Bill. These data are also a resource when policymakers determine Federal assistance. In 2000, direct government payments totaled $22.9 billion dollars.

Agricultural producers chosen to participate in these surveys will represent from 50 to 100 fellow producers, and will therefore make and important contribution to the overall welfare of America's farmers and ranchers. All individual data collected are held strictly confidential by law (Title 7, U.S. Code). Only statistical totals are published for selected geographic regions and the nation.

Results from these surveys will be used by farm operators, farm organizations, commodity groups, lenders, university researchers, news media, local USDA agencies, farm suppliers, and other to compare prices, paid, evaluate economic challenges facing America's food and fiber producers, determine the need for farm assistance, measure the cost of agricultural production, and assess the ability for producers to maintain sustainable farms.

Farm Production Expenditures will be released July 18. For a copy of the finished report or to obtain other agricultural statistics, visit the National Agricultural Statistics Service web site at www.usda.gov/nass/ or call 1-800-928-5277.
