Local woman selected to trapshooting team

Nora Martin of Carlisle has been selected to the Amateur Trapshooting Association 2002 Women's All-American Trapshooting Team. This is the 25th straight time Martin has been named an All-American, and she has served as captain or co-caption 17 times.

At the Grand American (the annual 10 day world championship tournament, which in August drew more than 6,400 contestants to the ATA's complex near Dayton, Ohio), Martin captured the ladies' title in the Champion of Champions race, the only one not open to all ATA members. Only the current singles champions from each state and Canadian province may enter.

In addition, her 961x1,000 was high among women in the Preliminary High-Over-All (the sum of all scores shot during the four days of preliminary competition). She also won two handicap trophies while posting 98 and 94 from 27 yards.

The ATA also sponsors a series of "satellite" Grands (regional tournaments providing Grand American-style trophies and competition). Martin's five trophies during Spring Grand competition in February near Phoenix, Ariz.), included the ladies' title in Singles Championship, All-Around and High-Over-All. The all-around includes the combined totals of the main singles, doubles and handicap events, usually 400 targets, while the high-over-all is the sum of all scores shot during the tournament.

At the Southern Grand (in March near Tampa, Fla.), Martin claimed the women's crown in the Singles Championship, All-Around and High-Over-All, and she earned five additional awards.

Martin's numerous trophies at the Kentucky State Shoot included first place among ladies in the three championship events, all-around and high-over-all.

She collected additional trophies at the Wisconsin, Iowa and Florida state tournaments.

To be considered for the All-American team, Martin had to meet a minimum target requirement, and she had to have competed in at least three states. Selection was made based on points the shooter accumulated while winning trophies at tournaments throughout the country.

Established in 1923, the ATA promotes and governs the sport of trapshooting, primarily in the United States and Canada. In 2001, 33,625 members participated in the sport, competing at over 6,414 sanctioned tournaments (shoots registered by the ATA organization) on the local, regional, state, zone and world championship levels.

Trapshooting is a traditional shotgun sport where competitors fire at clay targets (approximately 4-1/4 inches in diameter and 1-1/8 inch in height) launched at varying angles. In singles events, all entrants stand at the 16 yard line and fire at one target at a time; in handicap, participants are assigned to a yardage from 19 to 27 yards (according to averages and known ability) and fire at one target at a time; in doubles, two targets are released at the same time and each contestant, standing at the 16 yard line, allowed one shot for each.

Trapshooting celebrities have included Annie Oakley, John Philip Sousa and Roy Rogers.

If interested in trying trapshooting, call the ATA at (937) 898-4638 or visit the association's web site www.shootata.com to find a local club.

SENIORS FROM FRONT

for the seniors so I wanted to go out and not disappoint them because we wanted them to get a win on senior night."

The 'Cats tried, haplessly, to press Storie's team but fought a losing battle.

"They (Menifee) tried to make it an up and down game," Bretz said. "But we broke their press and that got us a lot of transition baskets."

Nicholas County (7-15) did 20 points better than Menifee in the second half (24-10, 26-20) to net the spectacular win on such a special night.

Bretz's 32 led all scoring and Saunders pumped in 23 points. Kyle Harmon and Earlywine each finished with 10. Herrington had nine and Hunt added seven.

Ben Mattox led the Wildcats with 14.

BALLOON FROM FRONT

The Schulte's have 65 acres of woods, ravines and trees. They live 12-14 miles south of Spencer, W.Va. and figured it was about 200 miles from their home to Carlisle. Looneyville, W.Va. is usually not on the map.

Bill and Mary Schulte even returned the card and ribbon that had been attached to the balloon. Also, much to the delight of the first graders, Zornes especially, they sent pictures of their farm and animals, which include chickens, a rooster and a potbellied pig named Pinky Weezeltoes, which is black and loves cookies.

Zornes and her classmates are writing to the West Virginia family to thank them for their reply and send them pictures of the class.
