'Creepers Creepers'

Ron's Rants
Ron Middleton
 Staff Writer

This movie misses the mark on all counts. And even though, as a whole, the movie was terrible, there actually were a few bright spots.

An original idea in the movie is that the main characters are brother and sister, instead of the usual boyfriend/girlfriend combination. Long and Phillips give strong performances and their chemistry together. I really believed they could be siblings.

Siva kept the gore to a bare minimum, which is a rare thing in modern horror movies, and most of the deaths occur off-screen.

The flip side is, because most of the action is off-screen, we are treated to hundreds of variations of the mind-boggled, wide-eyed look of horror. Usually horror movies like this are so bad they are funny, which makes them fun to watch. Unfortunately, Jeepers Creepers does not qualify for this category. It's just a bad movie.

Not even the extra features could save this DVD from the bottom of the barrel. There are lots of deleted and extended scenes and several mini-documentaries on the making of the movie which are sort of interesting. I think the hardest part of acting is knowing you're in a bad movie and having to act like it's the greatest movie you've ever been in. If that was considered Oscar-time, everyone involved with this movie would be taking home one of the trophies.

The only time I would recommend getting this movie would be for a slumber party because of the low gore factor, and it has the added bonus of putting them all to sleep within 90 minutes.
