

Trim the weeds!

'April showers bring May flowers...' That old saying holds true...

On one hand, they are colorful, growing mostly in combinations of red, white and blue...

Plus, if you look really close, they have designs on them that resemble letters...

Other than letting you know what their names are and what they're running for...

If filed a complaint, would I get the $3,000 reward?

It's not just the smaller signs, either. One candidate puts their little nameplate out there...

These billboards are everywhere, they really don't offer much but you probably would get to see a picture of the candidate...

The main problem I have with all this pasturing is you never really find out what the candidate stands for.

I think it would be Se WEEDS on 5 simple way more effective to put signs out there that simply say "WEEDS"

And if you're not sure who you want to vote for, pick up a local newspaper and look for stories pertaining to the office you're concerned with, whether it is city council, magistrate or bowling shop, sterilizer, and make your decision from there. If someone doesn't vote the way you feel, vote for the other guy and pray that we don't have to pay more taxes because of them.
Any way you go, please don't let those late voting signs tell you which way to vote.
That's just my opinion.
