Let's Go to the Movies

Looks like you'll need a brand new reason to travel to Lexington or Cincinnati.
Having surgery closer to home just got better.

It used to be that, in many cases, traveling to larger medical centers miles away was the best option for having surgery. That's no longer the case. Advances in surgical techniques, updates in our surgical technology and a $15 million expansion at Harrison Memorial Hospital make staying closer to home to receive your surgical care the smarter choice.

We're brimming with pride to show off our new operating suite, complete with larger OR rooms, maximum workspace efficiency and state-of-the-art technology designed to perform minimally-invasive procedures. Whether it's an inpatient or outpatient procedure, Harrison Memorial Hospital offers a comprehensive list of surgeons and more than 70 specialists on staff to tackle tough cases.

And while we have plenty of new things to brag about, we're equally proud of the experience our surgeons and full, dedicated operating room staff have. After all, isn't experience a number one priority when it comes to surgery? Our surgical infection rates are some of the lowest in the country, outperforming most of our competitors in the region.

No longer a community hospital, we've become a regional medical center with one goal in mind – using cutting-edge surgical techniques and technology to heal our friends and neighbors at home. Come experience a brand new day in medicine.

FLU

Health Department where Kathy Rainey says the number of people coming in for flu shots has decreased even though she says there has been an influx of flu cases reported recently.

"In the past month we've been getting a lot of flu reports back," she said. "We didn't have any at all for a while and then we had quite a few. But hopefully that was our peak and it's over now."

While there was a flu vaccine shortage last winter, that was not the case this year and there is even flu vaccine becoming outdated at many hospitals and health departments, even here in Nicholas County.

"We did have an awful lot of flu vaccine go to waste this year," said Rainey. "People just aren't utilizing it like they should."

While there is no way to completely eliminate your chances of getting the flu, Caldwell says there are two ways to help prevent it.

"Flu shots are very effective. And there is a flu shot for children now that is recommended, too," said Caldwell. "The best way to prevent flu and viral illnesses is hand washing."
