County examines proposed tax, denies vehicle for sheriff

By Charles Mattox News Editor. With budget deadlines looming, the county board last week examined a proposed tax increase and denied a request for a vehicle for the sheriff's office.

Members noted that was also in attendance and agreed with Garrett's statements. He made another vehicle, and I'll pay for this out of my own pocket.

Mayor, council review first round of budget figures

The projected budget for the City of Carlisle increased by approximately $1.5 million from last year's budget. A large portion of that increase comes in the form of various state and federal grant applications.

Members noted that was also in attendance and agreed with Garrett's statements. He made another vehicle, and I'll pay for this out of my own pocket.
