GENERAL NEWS

Mayor cites gas savings, praises police

Although most Kentuckians will be experiencing a modest increase in gasoline prices this winter, Carlisle Mayor Ronnie Clark announced during last week's city council meeting that the price hike would not affect Carlisle residents... Clark also took a few moments to express his praise for the efforts of city police officers.

Clark said the city's ability to purchase when the market was at its lowest was the key to the city's savings... Clark also said city residents are increasing every day due to material and fuel increases... Clark said the year-long trends in the natural gas market were comparable to what we've looked at in a fair price of about 70 percent of what we can hold," he said.

LETTERS TO THE EDITOR

The Nicholas County Veterans Day program, held at the Neal Center on Nov. 10, was a noteworthy and successful event... The city continues to refine the policies surrounding natural gas customers, and Clark said he understands that "people don't want to pay for something they're not used to when discussing energy."
