Heaven Is A Lot Like Kentucky

COLUMBUS SHALUMBUS visiting artifact nerd heaven.

Did Columbus discover America? No, he did not. I'm glad a certain group of folks got to sleep late Monday morning in honor of Christopher Columbus, but I'm of the opinion that he didn't discover America.

I wish someone would explain to me how Columbus can get credit for discovering a land that was already inhabited by millions of people.

That would be kind of like blurring out that I've discovered Nicholas County. I could say it, but I doubt anyone would pay any attention to me.

No one would be getting the day off with pay, thank you for sure.

Saying something doesn't necessarily make it so, and I am reminded of that each day while I'm tracking down information during my news editor duties.

President Abraham Lincoln once asked his advisers the following question "If you call the tail a leg, then how many legs does an average dog have?"

His advisors quickly answered "Five, Mr. President."

Lincoln replied, "No you fools, a dog has four legs, calling a tail a leg just doesn't make it so."

But anyway, getting back to my point of disseminating Columbus.

I had a great weekend at the Ancient American Artifact Preservation Foundation conference in Wilmington.

Heaven is A Lot Like Kentucky

Members of the AARP are among a growing number of scholars, authors and professionals alike, who are concluding, after many years of study, that America was colonized by many groups of "Old World" cultures long before Columbus was even born.

I met people at the conference who are convinced that Kentucky, and thus Nicholas County, was one inhabited by ancient Welsh knights and royalty.

The legend of Prince Madoc of Wales is well known among historians and difamists, but for those of you less familiar with the legend it is based on a young Welsh prince, Madoc Ab Owain Gwynedd, who sailed to legend, according to America from Wales in 1170 to escape the violence of a civil war.

The legend of Prince Madoc was largely uninhabited for several hundred years prior to the arrival of Daniel Boone and other pioneers, and according to Cherokee and Shawnee legend it is based on a young Welsh prince, Madoc Ab Owain Gwynedd, who sailed to legend, according to America from Wales in 1170 to escape the violence of a civil war.

A Conversation with Michael L. Noble, MD Dr. Noble recently joined the group at Bluegrass Medical Clinic in Paris.

Why did you choose Paris, Kentucky and Bluegrass Medical Clinic? Being from Kentucky, I was very anxious to get back and live closer to friends and family.

Why do you choose to specialize in family medicine? Family medicine was the one area where I could treat the whole patient, as well as the whole family.

What is your approach to patient care? I practice medicine with a patient centered approach. I trust evidence-based medicine to dictate what should and shouldn't be done and correlate that with what I believe serves the patient best.

Tell us a little about your life outside the office? I am very much a family man, and I spend as much time as possible with my daughter and wife.

Making Our Communities Healthier Dr. Noble is now accepting new patients and accepts most insurance plans.
