N.C.H.S. Band sets sight on final four

If you have driven by the school during the last week and a half, you may have noticed a group of talented students and their dedicated instructors working diligently on the hot pavement. This group is the 2008 version of the Nicholas County High School Marching Band. The 2008 Marching Bluejackets consists of twelve wind players, eight percussionists, six colorguard members and their field commander, Kayla Hammond. Six of these students are brand new to the marching band activity while seven of them will be enjoying their last season as a Marching Bluejacket. Assistant band director, April Hawkins, describes this year's band as a "talented group with an impressive work ethic."

This year's program is entitled "Anish." It includes such works as "Night on Bald Mountain," "Shostakovich," "Flight of the Bumblebee," and "Clair de Lune."

This year's show is a culmination of the staff's ideas. Things basically start with an idea from one and snowballs into a "final four" frenzy.

For the third consecutive year, the drill was written by Nicholas County alumnus, Alex Wilson while the guard work was created by Bethany Cox, a former Davison County band member. Both Wilson and Cox are actively involved in medical school and help out the band in their "spare" time.

Other staff for the band this year includes alumni Jeremy Owens, assistant director and alumni, April Hawkins, and director, Debbie Hale.

Regarding the goals and the attitude of the NCHS band this year, it was best stated by one of this year's seniors, "I don't see that anybody will touch us this year."

The students are excited and ready for another successful season. They are ready for the Class A trophy to come back home to Carlisle.

The band will be in competition for the first time this season on Sat., Sept. 6 at East Jessamine High School.
