Nicholas County Bookworms a new reading club

By Melissa Mitchell Staff Writer melissam@carlislemercury.com

The Nicholas County Bookworms is a club that has established its first past month with meetings at the Carlisle Mercury office...

The book reviews will be published in the newspaper once the club has completed the book being read...

The first book that the club read is Clay's Quilt by Silas House...

Silas House is the author of the novel Clay's Quilt, A Parchment of Leaves, The Cool Tattoo, and the play The Hurtling Part...

He has recently collaborated with actress Ashley Judd on a film that should be shooting next year...

House lives in Eastern Kentucky. The book Clay's Quilt is about a 4-year-old boy named Clay Sizemore that finds himself alone in a small Appalachian mining town after his mother was killed. He slowly learns to lean on the residents of Free Creek as family...

I have found that the club has been a success so far, even though there are just a few members now...

The pleasant thoughts that went through my mind made me appreciate the novel...

Clay's Quilt by Silas House is a fantastic book that drew me in from the first page...

Willoughby's version of what happened that day was similar to that of the Kimes brothers...

Willoughby testified that when he went to leave the home that morning to pick up his son and take him to school...

He took the Sims card and laid it on the table. Willoughby said of Clayton Kimes on the morning in question, "All I had was a $100 bill."

Willoughby testified that the three of them, in two separate vehicles, went to Plank's Grocery in Moorefield...

Brown testified during cross-examination from Public Defender, La Mer Kyle Rene Griffiths that Willoughby had not mentioned purchasing anything that morning...

Police Chief William Denton, Carlisle Police Officer Brand Weaver and Nicholas County Deputy Sheriff Benny Buckler, also testified for the Commonwealth about their role in the incident.

Buckler said he had been dispatched that day to the Willoughby home after dispatch was notified of a burglary in progress with shots being fired...

Willoughby testified that he had previously worked with Clayton Kimes.
