The Little League Sabbath school class of 2008 is having a ready hand from more than one "I'm bored." It is great to see the children supporting their children at games, win or lose, rain or shine, sunny or hot, no matter what they are there. These same parents and grandparents also find time to teach, help and get their children to Bible School, be present for their program and many attended the Relay for Life. Yes, Carlisle and Nicholas County has a lot to offer any child.

His Own! So I was told. Kaitly Rose Bartels won the baby contest at eh Berry Fair. She is the daughter of Glenda (Thacker) Bartels and Shane Bartels.

Mr. and Mrs. Phillip McDonald entertained several people for dinner on Fathers Day, at their home at Healy Springs.

A dinner buffet and annual county meeting on Monday night. The theme for meeting was "Hats of the Prom-makers." About then tables were decorated with pretty hats with flowers and ribbons and those were used for door prizes and Kim Leeger had a cute hat for a favor. Even a cake was decorated with all these most women wore a hat and also had a display of old hats. Patay Spout, outgoing president, told of the many things the club have done the past year.

Many people attended the Relay For Life held behind Nicholas County High School on Friday night. This takes many hours of labor from many people. Phyllis Brady was so happy to win one of the 3 Relay For Life Quilts and she happened to get the one that had her best friends name on it "In Memory of Jessica McCreo Thacker" that she gave for.

link the classroom to real world events. "It's a very valuable teaching tool, especially with student writing. They are tested on informational reading and it's very beneficial. We've had it for three years, but not the local papers. I'm just excited that we will have the local paper doing it as well."

beat away to teach a student because it doesn't make them feel like they are working, yet they are still learning. Keeping up on current events, reading materials and economics will be wonderful that our local media will be providing that service to our students. It shows that we are in keeping with what they are learning in larger cities and counties. I think it's great."

You can take any page in the newspaper and develop an educational activity suited to various grade levels. Pulling activities from newspapers can be fun for students searching for an alternative way of learning.

We as a community want our youth to be educated adults, what better way to do that than to support NIE. We want every child to be able to hold a newspaper in their hands and pull every bit of knowledge from it. It returns they can take that knowledge home and share with their parents, relatives, and friends. NIE is the first step to making educated, informed adults.

Your donations will go toward sponsoring classrooms involved in NIE. We want to provide this program free of charge to schools and we need your help and donations to make this a success.
