Heaven Is A Lot Like Kentucky

Former medical professor, Major John McCrae, a surgeon attached to the Allied 1st Field Artillery Unit...

He would have wept, but he simply had no tears left. For 17 straight days with no sleep...

McCrae was 41-years-old. He had been a veteran of the second Boer War...

He later found McCrae and returned the pad but scribble a line or two on the pad...

McCrae scribbled some more, paused, scribbled again and then stopped. For a full minute his gaze then shifted to the pad...

In Flanders Fields the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row

That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly

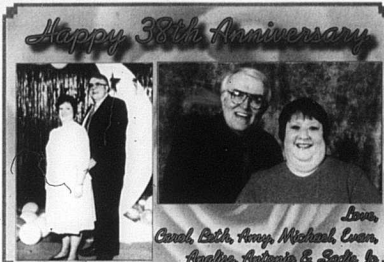

Scarce heard amid the guns below
We are the dead. Short days ago

We lived, fell dawn, saw sunset glow
In Flanders fields

And the great solemnity of death
Has brought us here

Where the poppies blow
Between the crosses row on row

That mark our place, and in the sky
The larks, still bravely singing, fly

Compassionate and Caring

And this is her story.

Every person has a story to tell. Andrea's story is one of compassion. Of friendship. And of beauty — beauty that comes from seeing someone who's truly passionate about her job. You see, Andrea makes it her personal goal to deliver the same quality of care to her patients that she would her own mother.

Double-checking Mrs. Bradford's medical records to prevent prescription errors. Constantly monitoring her pain level. And even ensuring she and her family have all their questions answered along the way. That makes for a good patient experience and quality care. And it's a commitment to excellence that's shared by the entire nursing staff at Harrison Memorial Hospital.

Spending extra time with her patients separates Andrea and her colleagues from the care delivered at larger medical centers. Our patients receive better care. And Andrea receives some of Mrs. Bradford's homemade poundcake in return. Everyday wins.

Tell us your story.
