Millersburg Garden Club Studied Bluebirds in September Meeting

The Millersburg Garden Club met on Thursday, September 11, at Fox Hollow Farm, the home of member Judy Cleaver.

Judy gave a short program about Bluebirds, which included about species profiles nesting schedules, predators, parasites, and pests, nest box designs, tips on mounting and siting nesting boxes, and plants which attract the birds. Afterward, each member selected a nest box kit and, with the help of some spouses in the group, built their own wooden box to take home. The kits, which were provided by Barbara Harris and Kay Thomas, included precut wood pieces, screws and door latches. Each member also received a copy of additional informational Bluebird booklet made available by Linda Gillespie. The men who were on hand to help were Ed Thomas, Freddy Gillespie and Si Cleaver.

After a break for lunch, a business meeting was held. Business included the judges' report, the Nominating Committee report, a report form project chairpersons, and native plant discussion led by Ann Blevins. The following important events were announced: 1. Arbor Day at the Wallis House on Tuesday, September 16, 1:00 p.m. which will include a tree planted in memory of past member, Geraldine Summay. 2. A plant and bulb sale on Friday, September 19, 10:00 a.m. until 2:00 p.m also at the Wallis House. Our members will provide cookies and workers for the sale. 3. The annual work day at the Wallis house on Monday, October 13, beginning at 9:00 a.m. 4. The Limestone District is being hosted by the Harrison County Garden Club and the Trials and Trowels Garden Club. The program will be presented by Wildlife Biologist, Tom R. Biebighauser, and is titled "Do the Fairies in your garden wear galoshes"

The next meeting will be held on Thursday, October 9, 2:00 p.m. at the Millersburg Community Center. The program will be presented by Angela Arnett of Waysnesburg, Kentucky who will give us an informative lesson on growing, designing, carving and painting gourds. Angela is a juried member of the Kentucky Craft Marketing Program and has been working with Kentucky grown grounds for many years.

As always, visitors are invited and encouraged to attend any meeting or special outing of the club. Interested persons should contact Barbara Harris at 859-234-1646.

Roll-over accident, no injuries

On Thursday, Sept. 18, Lisa Joseph had just finished delivering pizzas and was heading back into Carlisle on Myers Rd. when she swerved onto the right shoulder to avoid hitting two dogs, then over-corrected. She lost control of the vehicle and drove off a steep embankment. The car rolled once, ending up on its roof. Lisa was wearing her seatbelt and was able to escape without injury. Sheriff Dick Garrett was the investigating officer at the scene.

NCHS Marching Band in competition

By Seth Tedder
Student Staff Writer

Size doesn't matter. Excellent proof of this lies in the Nicholas County High School Marching Band's 2008 show, "Vanish". The band season started June 9th and has been running strong since. Now, about halfway through the season, the band is still working hard, day and night, (some literally every day of the week) to work out the kinks of their show and have it perfected by the first of November, which is the single day band students, teachers; and parents live for: State Competition.

"Vanish" is an in-depth adventure in to the many mysterious ways in which one can...well...Vanish. Throughout the performances, seemingly random band members will disappear. Some go behinds props while others change clothes mid-performance, appearing to the audience that, one-by-one, the band disappears.

The music fits perfectly with these events. The opener, Night On Bald Mountain, is a suspenseful, borderline scary, look at how one can disappear by means of darkness. The ballad of the show, Shenandoah, (featuring baritone soloist, Daniel Broderick) makes on-lookers ponder the disappearances possible through water.

Song number three, the ever-insane Flight Of The Bumblebee, follows Amelia Earhart (guard soloist Hal-ey Blankenship) and her unsolved disappearance by flight. This version of "Flight" is "Jazzed Up" and induces the audience, willing or not, to dance along with the pit. Two other soloists show off their impressive finger dexterity in this number, J. T. Fryman on saxophone, and myself (Seth Tedder) on mellophone and electric guitar.

The fourth song is another ballad entitled Clair De Lune where the band forms a crescent moon while I introduce the song with another mellophone solo. While the woodwinds play their feature, the brass follows the stages of the moon until it eventually becomes a new moon, "disappearing" into the night. The fifth and final number in this amazing adventure is a "Remix" of Night On Bald Mountain, revisiting the concept of a disappearance by darkness. Every song is introduced by Max Scalf and his trusty microphone by-use of voice-overs. His skin chilling lines actually kick off the show. As he enunciates "Imagine vanishing into the darkness!" the brass kick in with a frightening whisper of intensity. These voice-overs have been compared to "The Twilight Zone" by the Kentucky band community.

When asked about how she thought the season was going thus far, Debbie Hale, Director of the marching Jackets, said that compared to other years, "We're actually further ahead than usual, though not as far as I'd like to be." This could be in reference to certain setbacks that have taken place in the band's practice schedule. One such setback would include the winds leftover from Ike damaging all of the band's props, some beyond repair. Band parents to the rescue! The admirable people, who make the amazing things the band do possible, worked long hours, starting from scratch to rebuild the props they made once already. In less than a week, the props were as good as new.

Band parents' duties also include feeding the band at competitions, managing the band's budget, fund raising, morally supporting, and simply reassuring everyone when all else seems lost. Though if I were to name everything the band parents have done for us, I would be here a while.

All in all, the band season is going great. For those of you who enjoy the band, feel free to come to some competitions. And those of you, who never gave the band a second thought, try a competition. I guarantee you'll want to come back for more. We need all the support we can get. So if you see a "band geek" on the street, please show some kind of support. A few words can change morale for a lifetime. But be prepared if you do see one on the street, for they may "Vanish" in an instant.

We want to thank everyone for their business. We opened our store May of this year with a warm welcome from the public & we just want everyone to know it is greatly appreciated.
Also, there has been a bit of confusion with some folks. We do not have anything to do with Applegates. Furniture which use to be in the same building we are at now. They went out of business before we even started. Also, Orangeburg New & Used Furniture is a completely different business and we have nothing to do with them as well.
Thanks again to everyone for their business.
