

Steve's Report

During the past week or so - especially after the last ice storm - I have heard a number of folks comment how they are ready for spring. I don't recall what the weather was like on February 2nd, but I'm thinking that groundhog must have been already taken, because we're definitely experiencing a few more weeks of the cold stuff. That reminds me: I think we're missing out on a tremendous opportunity around here. That woolly, little groundhog has transformed the tiny town of Punxsutawney, Pennsylvania into a world-famous tourist attraction. Every Groundhog Day, folks flock there in droves to see that little rodent predict the weather.

Steve's Report
By Steve Scalfe

"We need to do something like that," I told myself, "Horses and Deer Day" are already taken. Then, all of a sudden it hit me. As a matter of fact, that unmiatkeable stench was pretty hard to overlook - you might even say it was overpowering. I was only half-way to Millersburg and was already passing by my third dead skunk. "No there in droves to see that little rodent predict the weather." That gave me an idea.

Maybe we could make February 15th, the day after Valentine's Day, "Pepe Le Pew Day." We could use the famous cartoon character as the mascot. And then on the morning of the 16th, we could lure a skunk out of its hollow log (or wherever it lives). If it gets frightened and sprays (or wanders out onto the road and gets run over) we get to extend Valentine's Day out into late February, transforming the holiday into a wild and crazy Love Fest. "Oh, wait a minute," I realized. "There's a place out in Louisiana that already does something like that - only without the stink." They call it "Mardi Gras." Anyway, back to the idea. I have to admit that I have actually enjoyed this winter. After being away from the cold for so long, the beauteous of the snow-covered hills has been a welcome sight. I haven't evind the cold wind as it nipped my ears and bit the tip of my nose during my brisk, morning walk to the newspaper office. A couple of days after the recent ice storm, Cindy and I were driving down along Stoney Creek, near Lower Blue Licks, when the road led us through a small grove of trees. The branches were still heavy with ice, but after two days of partial melting, the ice had become as clear as glass. Occasional pieces had broken off shattering on the hard-glazed snow below, spraying tiny crystals of ice across its surface. As we passed through the grove, the sunlight bounced and reflected through the glass-covered branches, here and there catching the tiny shards of ice on the snow making it sparkle like diamonds. The view was simply breathtaking; truly one of the most spectacular and awe-inspiring scenes we have ever beheld. I know some of you are anxious for spring, but I wouldn't have missed the beauty of this winter for the world - not even after we lost heat and power for about three hours last Saturday night. About the only thing I could have done without was our heat and power. I saw it lying there. When I Surrealist works feature the element of surprise, unexpected juxtapositions however many artist and writers regard their work as "an expression of the philosophical mind." Meetings in cafes where the Surrealists played collaborative drawing games and discussed the theories of this art characterizing the art in the mid-1920. the other day my husband and I went out to dinner and ran into a friend. While asking about her family and the destruction of the trees she proceeds to tell me about her son and his interest in surrealism in filmmaking. Well, that's all it took to peak my interest and to some research of this art form of which I was unfamiliar.

Surrealism is a Cultural movement that began in the early 1920's, and is best know for the visual artworks and writings of the group members.
