An early afternoon fire destroyed the home of David Guy of 3475 Johnson Road in northern Nicholas County Tuesday.

Mr. Guy was away from his home on his way to Cynthiana when he received a call from a family member informing him that his home was on fire. Guy's 12-year-old daughter was in school.

"We've lost everything," Mr. Guy said as he stood motionless feet from the fire as a raging inferno totally engulfed the home. His jaw muscles tightened and quivered as he fought back tears. "We've lost everything."

Nicholas County Voluntary Firefighters drove quickly over the narrow roads leading to the Guy residence and battled the blaze with two trucks and two hoses, but there was little they could ex-

Pending flood ordinance could flood county with concerns

By Charles Mattox

A pending federal "Flood Damage Prevention Ordinance" will soon inundate Nicholas County and will have wide spreading effects and has caused a flood of concern across northeastern Kentucky.

"It's not fair to hold the county hostage with an unfounded mandate," Nicholas County judge-Executive Larry Tinchler said last week when consulting with officials with the Kentucky Division of Water.

Nicholas County Magistrates received a copy of the proposed ordinance last week for future consideration of passage.

They will have little or no choice but pass the ordinance or face severe risk of being isolated from federal and state funding in the event of a natural disaster.

Tinchler said he believed the 911 mapping that was performed by members of the Bluegrass Area Development district would prove beneficial for the community regarding the ordinance, but has joined neighboring county officials in questioning the accuracy and necessity of the ordinance and the way with which it is being forced upon counties in the Licking River Valley watershed.

The ordinance has caused public outcry in neighboring Fleming County where residents were listed as being in a flood plain when they actually weren't.

"There have been mistakes found on the floodplain maps," Fleming County Judge-Executive Larry Foxworthy said last week.

A summary of the ordinance states that the ordinance "shall apply to all areas of special flood hazard within the juris-dition of Nicholas County as identified by the Federal Insurance Administration and mandates that no structure or land in said areas shall hereafter be located or extended, converted or structurally altered without compliance with its provisions; requires the obtaining of a permit from the County Judge-Executive or mayor as administrator and the Kentucky Division of Water; permitting manufactured homes within areas of special flood hazard; requires that all new construction and substantial improvements be constructed with materials and utility equipment resistant to flood damage; provides that in all areas of special flood hazard, the lowest floor elevated to or above base flood elevation or has said floor flood-proofed; and provides penalties of $100 or imprisonment of not more than ten days for each day a violation of this ordinance continues."

If the county does not pass the ordinance by the end of May of the is year, they will be sanctioned by state and federal officials and will not be able to apply for any funding following a disaster from the Federal Emergency Management Agency (FEMA), according to discussion at public hearings held recently in Fleming County by Russell Neal, National Flood Insurance Specialist of the Surface Water Permits Branch of the Division of Water.

Incident damages business

An investigation continues following an early Sunday morning accident, which damaged a local business and threatened to create greater damage after a natural gas meter, suffered damage.

Carlisle Police Officer Guy Turner continues to lead the investigation following a collision between a vehicle and Dee Jay Auto Parts on Main Street. The collision resulted in a ten-foot section of glass being destroyed at the store and an exterior gas meter being destroyed.

The driver of the vehicle that struck the business fled the scene immediately after the impact.

"It could have been a lot worse," said Carlisle City Supervisor and Carlisle Fire Chief Jeff Jefferson, regarding the destruction to the natural gas meter.

Jefferson and several firefighters joined other emergency responders, including Officer Turner at the scene. Jefferson and others quickly shut off sections of Main Street and shut the gas meter off.

"Only one natural gas customer was affected when we shut the gas off," Jefferson said, indicating Dee Jay Auto was that customer.

The well-known auto parts dealership was open Monday morning after plywood was used to replace the plate glass bay windows that previously covered the front of the store. Customers were lined up at

A Nicholasville man who allegedly murdered a Carlisle woman last January, has entered a guilty plea to murder and assault charges.

Pauline Mastin, 43, of Second Street, Carlisle was found beaten to death at 567 Muir Station Road, Lexington, in January 2009 while visiting family members.

Gary Stone, 33, was arrested for the heinous crime in November of 2009. He entered a guilty plea to murder last week in Bourbon Circuit Court.

Gary Stone

The recommended sentence for Stone is life without parole for 25 years. Formal sentencing is set for April 8.

Court documents, and comments from law enforcement officials indicate Stone went into the house to steal guns and while in the house struck Mastin in the head with a hammer while she slept on the couch. Two other people in that house were also assaulted and hurt.

Stone plead guilty to murder, assault, burglary, and tampering with evidence charges, and faces a recommended sentence of life without parole for 25 years. Formal sentencing is set for April 8.

Lexington police arrived at the murder scene after

Heaven Is A Lot Like Kentucky

The Captivity and Escape of
Chief Blue Jacket

Heaven Is A Lot Like
Kentucky

By
Charles Mattox

"Blue Jacket turned back and I was just about to shoot him when (Major Andrew) Hood rode up and jumped down, knocked my gun up saying 'you will kill some of our men' and Blue Jacket ran right into my arms, having thrown away his weapons. James Beath, who had formerly been a prisoner among the Indians, came up and hit him with the breech of his gun over the eye, so that it raised a great lump as big as your fist. They knocked six silver rings out of his ear, which I picked up and kept. James Beath and Big Bill Whiteside had both been prisoners among the Indians and could talk Indian." John Hawks, Draper manuscript volume 12CC, on the capture of Shawnee War Chief Weyapiersenwah, known along the frontier as Blue Jacket.

"We crossed the Licking River about the Mouth of Fox Creek and came upon the Indians at the head of Cabin Creek. They had taken eight or ten of our horses. They scattered and escaped, all except Blue Jacket, who we made our prisoner. As soon as he was taken he pointed toward Maysville and said 'Boone! Boone!' We got all our horses back and some strays. We then made Blue Jacket our pilot with strict instructions to take us direct and proceeded that night to Maysville where we put him under charge of Daniel Boone. Blue Jacket got away from us before we got back home (Captain John Strode's Station near present-day Winchester, Ky.)" Colonel Thomas Jones, Draper Manuscripts volume 12CC page 233.

"At Limestone (Maysville) the men got whiskey and while proceeding on with Blue Jacket they shot powder squibs at him and burned him and abused him roughly." Francis Jones, son of Colonel Thomas Jones, Draper Manuscripts volume 21S

"I saw Blue Jacket at Boone's (Maysville). They had him pinioned. On their way to Strode's they stopped in a little house (Robert Sconce's Cabin) near Millersburg. Blue Jacket was pinioned and his legs tied. The guard fell asleep and he jumped over them and got away and got into the woods. He crouched his head down so that he managed with his teeth to loosen his legs and then made off. He went to George Stockton's Station (Flemingsburg). There he stole Stockton's horse and rode him home, swimming the Ohio River. He nearly starved, for 14 days he only ate leaves and herbs and never got unpinioned until he reached home. When he was at Maysville he wore a Raven skin cap with the wings on. He had a most singular appearance. I saw him later in council before 1812." Christopher Wood, who was a young teenager when he saw Blue Jacket at Daniel Boone's cabin, excerpted from his deposition in the Draper Manuscripts volume 8BB

"Jimmy Beath tied Blue Jacket, I saw him, and he tied him up pretty rough too, with a string about three fingers wide. Beath put the string around his neck, so he couldn't get it over his head and then he tied a knot and jerked his arms back as far as he could and tied his arms above the elbow. Robert Sconce was a new settler and built a one-room log cabin. There wasn't enough room for all of us to stay inside. It came old man Stephen Biles turn to watch him and he fell asleep. It was the darkest hour, just before daylight. The men sprang to their horses and Sconce put his dogs on the track, but either he crossed a bear's trail or a bear crossed his trail and that turned the dogs out and we lost him. I was so mad I wouldn't take another step after him. Major Andrew Hood and John Constant were as good as wolves to track, but he got away." William Lazy Bill Clinkbeard, Draper Manuscripts.

"We had all been drinking," John Hawks, regarding the night at the Sconce cabin, Draper 12CC

I thought, dear reader, I would share the escape of the Shawnee War Chief Blue Jacket with you through the various words of some of the men who took part of the capture or witnessed a portion of it, such as young Christopher Wood.

Several of the primary sources say the incident occurred in 1788 or 89.

The fact that Blue Jacket had helped negotiate a peace treaty in the summer of 1787 at Maysville, had no doubt helped save his life and prevented several of the men from killing him outright during his captivity. During the 1787 peace negotiations, a number of white and Native American prisoners were exchanged and as a token of trust, for both sides, Daniel Morgan Boone, a teenage son of Colonel Daniel Boone, went on an extended deer hunt for several days with Chief Blue Jacket as the prisoner exchange ended. That incident built a foundation of trust between the two leaders that lasted throughout their lives.

Prisoners among the Shawnee during Blue Jacket's captivity and escape reported later upon their release, that Blue Jacket arrived back in his home village, still astride Stockton's horse, though he was in dreadful shape.

He still also had his Raven cap on, which had been fashioned by his wife, just before he started his horse-stealing raid into Kentucky. She said as long as he wore it the spirit of Raven would protect him from death, and thus the power of the talisman seemed to be noteworthy, particularly among the Shawnee.

Most agreed Blue Jacket was indeed very lucky to have survived.

My Two Cents

Spoiled Rotten

My Two Cents

By

One night, just before our third child, Sarah, was about to turn 14, I rolled over and told Cindy, "With three teenagers in our home at the same time, things could get really rough when they start hitting that rebellious stage."

Cindy pointed out that Katie was already 18 and Sam nearly 17 and that if they hadn't rebelled by then, we had probably already managed to dodge that bullet.

I realized Cindy was right, but had a hard time believing it. How could we have possibly been that lucky? So a couple of days later when the opportunity presented itself, we sat Katie and Sam down and asked them, "So, how come you kids never rebelled?"

Katie told us, "I didn't feel I needed to. When I wanted to do something that you didn't like, you would always explain your reasons, and it made sense. We knew you were right, so we went along with it most of the time."

At that very moment, I felt like someone had just crowned me Father-of-the-Year. I was feeling pretty good about myself... or at least until I realized, "It doesn't matter how good the advice is. What teenager ever listens to their parents?"

No, I had to admit that our children's lack of rebellion had more to do with their nature than it did with my supposed parenting skill. I've always believed that God never puts more on our plate than we are able to deal with. If that's true, I must have been pretty incapable, because when it came to parenting, we got off pretty easy. In fact, you might say that as parents, we've been spoiled rotten.

For years, whenever our kids were faced with a decision, we would talk to them about their choices and the consequences, or long-term effects, of their decision. Like all children, ours came "factory-equipped" with a conscience - an innate sense of right and wrong. By talking things through with them and encouraging our kids to identify the better choice themselves, rather than making the decisions for them, we were able to guide them towards making wise choices.

Still, we were very much involved in their decisions. Because they were at least partially dependent on Mom and Dad for food, clothing, money and transportation - and because they knew we were affected by their decisions - they were pretty good about coming to us for permission before they did things..

Now, however, we're discovering that having grown children is purely a spectator sport. We're just supposed to sit in the stands and cheer. When your son comes home with a new computer or gaming system and then discovers he's short on funds for college or for car insurance, you're supposed to say, "Hang in there, son. Keep working at it and you'll do fine." If your daughter decides to quit her job, sell her car, join the Peace Corps and move to India, you're supposed to say, "You're number one! Go Team, Go!"

Cindy and I are having a rough time adjusting. We are so used to being a part of their decisions - of playing the part of the coach and mentor - that it's hard for us to sit back and let them do it all on their own. When they come and tell us about the decisions that they've already made, we still tend to slip back into the old habit of voicing our opinions or trying to give advice. Every time we do, however, we see the look of hurt and disappointment on our kids' faces: "I'm not a little kid anymore, Mom and Dad. Can't you just trust me to do the right thing?"

And they're right. They are well past the child-rearing stage - if they haven't learned the lessons by now, it's too late for us to teach them. Now, we're supposed to sit back and trust them to do it all on their own. There's nothing left for us to do but go back to our place up in the stands and hope we did a good enough job preparing them for the "big game."

It's such a hard adjustment, though, coming all at once, the three oldest moving out of the house within months of each other. This past weekend, I called my parents and told them about our struggles as parents, trying to adjust to the idea of our kids being grown-up and independent. My Dad just chuckled and said, "Hang in there, son. Keep working at it and you'll do fine. You're number one! Go Team, Go!"

And that's my two cents, Steve Scalf

Leadership. According to the dictionary, leadership means

"the capacity to lead". This is probably one of the most single traits that you must accept and possess within yourself. You must be able to establish that you are the leader, so that your horses will trust, respect and then will follow your requests. Before you can accomplish your overall goals with your horse, you need to get this established right from the start. This is where you need to remain patient, persistent and consistent! Sounds easy, but it doesn't always work out as easy as it sounds.

If you are a beginner or new in your horsemanship skills, this can be a very trying, frustrating and nerve racking thing to accomplish with your intended equine partner. This is also probably one of the most valuable lessons you can give your horse to ensure your safety and your horses safety.

Without this understanding between you and your horse set firmly in place, you are literally on shaky, jumpy ground. If you are unsure of how to pursue this training, please contact someone who is an established rider or a trainer. I consider myself very fortunate because I have both of these, my best friend and excellent horsewoman, Paulette Klein at Sylvandell Farms in Cynthiana and a trainer and friend, Robert Lawson at Stoner Ridge Farm in Paris. Again, you will save yourself a whole lot of grief, frustration and time.

I also would like to stress that everyone that you know is not a horseman or horsewoman. A good horseman or horsewoman is someone that looks at the overall horse and rider and then makes determinations of where each should be and how fast this rider and horse needs to be pushed. This is not learned overnight! It is also someone who does it without using mechanical or abusive devices to receive the response that they are looking for.

All horses at one time or another, challenge their owners, riders, and handlers to see exactly what and how much they can get away with. This pertains to the ground, as well as, from the saddle. You need to be very firm in your actions, but not harmful nor abusive in any way, with your horse. You only have a split second to react to their actions with your reaction! Sounds easy, doesn't it?

It's easier if we are dealing with another human, dog or cat, but it is extremely different in dealing with a horse. They think with their left brain and their right brain. It is your job to train both! You also have to keep in mind that they are prey animals and we are predators. To me, this is truly amazing with this realization that they even let us ride them! Think about it, it goes against all that they believe to be normal in their horsey world.

I guess I should give you an example of how my beautiful, sweet Dazzlin' Diamonte has decided to do to determine who is the leader in our situation. To start off with, she decided to take me over to the nearest fence to try to get me off her that way. Needless to say, when you have your leg pinned to the fence trying to get her to move off and she won't budge except to look back at you and say "now, who do you think is in control here? ". You may need to calm yourself down and realize that you shouldn't be pulling on the reins but giving release to the reins and calm down enough to move her forward. She not only tried this once, but let's say three times in the same evening. She gave me quite a workout on my nerves and riding abilities but I guess I have to say that I won.

This past weekend my friends and I had the blessed opportunity to work in an inside arena at the Stoner Ridge Farm in Paris owned by the Lawson's and you will never guess what the first thing Diamonte decided to do. We were going around the arena and she decided that she needed to pull me nice and tight into the side walls of the arena. This happened not once but twice! Needless to say my pride was hurt and I felt pretty silly. But guess what, there is always something to be learned, taught and success to be achieved.

Titus 1:15, 16, 15 Unto the pure all things are pure: but unto them that are defiled and unbelieving is nothing pure; but even their mind and conscience is defiled. 16 They profess that they know God; but in works they deny him, being abominable, and disobedient, and unto every good work reprobate.
II Timothy 4:14 Alexander the coppersmith did me much evil: the Lord reward him according to his works:
Acts 5:38, 39, 38 And now I say unto you, Refrain from these men, and let them alone: for if this counsel or this work be of men, it will come to nought: 39 But if it be of God, ye cannot overthrow it: lest haply ye be found even to fight against God.
Psalms 28:4, 5, 4 Give them according to their deeds, and according to the wickedness of their endeavours: give them after the work of their hands; render to them their desert. 5 Because they regard not the works of the Lord, nor the operation of his hands, he shall destroy them, and not build them up.
Acts 5:9, 10, 2 Then Peter said unto her, How is it that ye have agreed together to tempt the Spirit of the Lord? behold, the feet of them which have buried thy husband are at the door, and shall carry thee out. 10 Then fell she down straightway at his feet, and yielded up the ghost: and the young men came in, and found her dead, and, carrying her forth, buried her by her husband.
Isaiah 54:17 No weapon that is formed against thee shall prosper; and every tongue that shall rise against thee in judgment thou shalt condemn. This is the heritage of the servants of the Lord, and their righteousness is of me, saith the Lord.
 Stop and think, who are you serving? What is your heritage?
Matthew 7:21 Not every one that saith unto me, Lord, Lord, shall enter into the kingdom of heaven; but he that doeth the will of my Father which is in heaven.
 In the last page of God's word, He tells us this: Revelation 22:12 And, behold, I come quickly; and my reward is with me, to give every man according as his work shall be.

OBITUARY

25 Years Ago March 21, 1985

The Kentucky Supreme Court is expected to issue a ruling in the next few weeks that could drastically change how local governments decide whether to allow the sale of alcoholic beverages.

The court heard arguments last Thursday revolving around the basic question of whether a political unit smaller than a county or city of the fourth class can legally hold a local option election on its own. Five separate cases on the same basic subject but with minor differences were consolidated by the high court so it could decide the entire issue.

In Nicholas County, for example, two precincts in the county seat of Carlisle — Mathias and City building — voted wet.

50 Years Ago March 24, 1960

Member of Lloyd George Post No. 8666 Veterans of Foreign Wars elected William Vaughn, commander of their post for the ensuing term, Tuesday night.

With the 1959 wool marketing year coming to a close and the 1960 year beginning, growers were reminded today of the importance of complete records on their sales of wool and unshorn lambs.

Who would have guessed 25 years ago that we would ever find as many as 200 uses for electricity on the farm? Use of electricity today has passed the wildest dreams of 1935. Researchers in the United States Department of Agriculture point to more than 400 different applications of electricity on the farm and in the farm home.

In Magoffin County, where the controversy started, a single magisterial district voted to hold legal liquor sales. In Barren, Pulaski and Simpson counties, petitions to hold a local option election in individual precincts or districts were presented to the local county judge-executives who refused to order the elections.

75 Years Ago March 21, 1935

County Agent R. J. Matson reports that R. O. Wilson, Field Supervisor Farm Credit Admin upon his recent visit to Carlisle, stated that Nicholas County made the best record of paying up previous year's government crop production loans of any county in the state. During the past season over 98 percent of the money loaned in 1934 for that purpose has been paid in full.

Senator Alben W. Barkley and Senator M. M. Logan last Thursday recommended Circuit Judge H. Church Ford, of Georgetown, for appointment as judge of the Eastern District Federal Court. The resignation of Crawford Biggs cleared the way for Stanley Reed's appointment as solicitor general. "Logan and I have recommended Judge Ford for appointment".

At the regular monthly meeting of Dougherty Lodge No. 65 F. & A. M. last Friday night, arrangements were completed for the collection and delivery of home-baked cakes to the home in the state for the Easter dinner of the inmates.

Ella Petitt Swebilus

She is survived by eight children; seven sons: Charles T., Robert E.L., Goble R., David G., Rickey A. and Eddie Petitt; one daughter; Mary F. Forgett; one brother, Eddie Cundiff; one sister, Deloris J. Cundiff; 54 grandchildren; 119 great-grandchildren, 12 great-great-grandchildren; and 1 very special great-nephew, Thomas Jolly.

Funeral services

Pallbearers are James P. Pruitt, Michael G. Pruitt, John F. Forgett, Eddie Petitt, Justin D. Petitt, Josh Wade and Billy J. Hubbard. Completed! Robert Lawson, friend and trainer, gave me some individual attention and needless to say, I needed some additional work on moving Dia forward on my time frame, not hers. He not only observed what was happening between me and my horse but he demonstrated and gave me the knowledge to correct this situation that could only get worse if action was not taken at this time in establishing our relationship!

Well, as you all may have come to the conclusion, I have my work cut out for the both of us but I am surrounded with good friends with good horse knowledge that will help me to reach my goals and be a success right alongside of them! To my credit, I am in a good mindset, willing to learn and work hard to make them proud in demonstrating that their abilities and knowledge that they are passing along to me are the right and safe way for Diamonte and I. I WILL win a ribbon for the two people that believe in me, my goals and my horse! I also need to thank my husband because he has been patient and understanding (most of the time) in my desire to reach my goals and to add yet another horse to our Southern Yankee barnyard!

God Bless You, Your Family and YOUR EQUINE FRIENDS and I pray you all have a safe, blessed, horse-filled week!

Megan Campbell

I am nominating Megan Campbell for student spotlight. Megan demonstrates a very high understanding of mathematics as seen through her work. She always maintains an A average in class. But more importantly always has a concern for how to solve problems. It is amazing to find students like herself that stay active in the classroom but do so many other activities for the school. She is shining example for which all students should follow.

Wyatt Burdett

I nominate Wyatt Burdett as my student spotlight, having him in class is like dealing with a real life cowboy from the wild west, with the accent and everything. Aside from his unique pronunciations of words like window, Wyatt also has one of the highest grades in the class, he repeatedly gets an A on assignments, quizzes, and tests. His achievement in class shows that you can be a good old fashion country boy with some serious school chops to fall back on, keep up the good work.

receiving a 911 call at approximately 4:23 a.m., Saturday morning Jan. 17, 2009, according to Lt. James Curless of the Lexington Police Department.

"We do not believe this was an attack directed at Mrs. Mastin," Curless said at the time. "We believe she was simply in the wrong place at the wrong time."

Mastin was spending the night with her brother-in-law Bart Mastin and his wife, Janie, who police say had suffered a stroke several years ago. Bart Mastin lives on a private farm owned by retired veterinarian Delano Proctor Jr., and it was at that home where the murder occurred.

According to police, Pauline Mastin was staying with Bart and Janie Mastin while her husband Johnny was at a Lexington hospital for medical reasons.

"Mrs. Pauline Mastin died as a result of blunt force trauma," Lt. Curless said as the investigation began. "Mr. Bart Mastin also sustained serious physical injury due to the assault."

Curless said dozens of Lexington officers have been actively engaged in the investigation.

"We've had over 20 officers involved in the investigation," Curless said while cautiously explaining that at that point in the investigation it was believed a home invasion and robbery occurred.

"Items had been removed from the residence," Curless said. "Our officers have been working diligently on this terrible crime and we have a person we are focusing on. I believe our investigation is moving in a positive direction."

That person, who investigators were "focusing on" was Stone, who was arrested as the investigation intensified and entered guilty pleas last week.

the counter and were provided with the same friendly service they have enjoyed for years, though more than one inquired, with a smile, about the new "drive thru" addition to the store.

Witnesses say a young female was driving the vehicle and left the scene immediately after the collision, which occurred at approximately 5:45 Sunday morning.

Police say a young man was found in the passenger seat and that he did not suffer any serious injuries. He has not been charged with any criminal offenses at this time.

Officer Turner, fellow

Carlisle Police Officer Bennie Buckler and Carlisle Chief of Police William Denton, continue to work together on the incident and though no one has been charged with any specific charges related to the incident, a young local woman, who some community sources say was the driver, was questioned and lodged in the Bourbon County Detention Center with an outstanding warrant for unpaid fines, later Sunday morning.

"We continue to gather information and have collected additional witness statements," Chief Denton said following the accident.

The Nicholas County High School baseball players, coaches and boosters would like to thank the community for their support in our current fundraiser. We express gratitude to the local businesses for contributions to our discount cards.

We also thank each and everyone who purchased our cards. There are still cards available. Please contact a player, coach or booster to get yours. We hope to see you at a game this season.

Thank you again.

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Editor,
I read with a smirk the front-page article of last week's Mercury showing Kentucky Association of Counties' Melinda Lewis and Judge Executive Tincher holding that huge cardboard check showing just how much we got back from KaCo. Wow, that's almost a dollar for very person in the county! The real humor started when it quoted Judge Tincher saying that this check showed "good management practices" by KaCo. This shows just how dilusional our officials are. Yes, Judge Tincher is on the board of KaCo and if he thinks they've been a good steward of our money then I would hate to see bad management. But if I were on the board I think I would try to slant this, too.

The board paid Arnold more yearly than any other similar official ($178,080 yearly) while providing him with a BMW SUV. They allowed him, and other Kaco members, to charge liquor, strip club expenses, and even female escorts with our tax dollars with nary a whimper. It was part of the culture. They wine and dined routinely going to high end restaurants with tabs of $100 to 150 dollars per person., They traveled in groups staying in hotels that cost $550 dollars a night. In the last two years they spent $128,608 dollars on 50 restaurant meals alone. Does it sound as if they are concerned about our tax burden? That's some high living that most of us will never know but they will because we pay the taxes that pay the premiums that pay for the party. It's sickening isn't it? But it didn't even raise and eyebrow from the board because they got some of those perks too. Are you getting the picture yet? They resisted changing even after these excesses were exposed until Kentucky State Auditor Crit Luallen threatened them. She called it outrageous and she's a politician. Excesses and corruption so over the top it sickened a fellow politician. It was that bad yet Executive Director Arnold, at their yearly meeting, gave a speech in which he told the people paying the tab to "Get over it!" and the officials there gave him a standing ovation. This is the guy who was using our dollars to pay for young female escorts, yet the board had to be forced to nudge him out the door.

So that's the reason for my smirk after seeing this story. I've said there are two possible explanations of how this went unchecked for so long. Either the board knew what was going on and did nothing which means they're as ethically challenged as Bob Arnold or they sat on the board and all this happened around them while remaining clueless which means they're not smart enough to have that job. Those aren't good choices.

Miles Hughes
Carlisle, KY.

* Point of clarity-The quote "good management practices" was in reference to "good management practices by county officials on the local level regarding unjust insurance claims, which some counties in the state had filed with KACo, but Nicholas had not," according to Judge-Executive Larry Tincher.

I ask each of you to Google Kentucky Association of Counties and read the graft and corruption that occurred under the "watchful eye" of the Board. This all happened with Executive Director Bob Arnold orchestrating this money grab with the board giving him a wink and a nod. If it doesn't make your blood boil then I think you must be numb and accepting of the "we and them" attitude that says we, the taxpayers, are here to serve them, the politicians, by taking our money and throwing a party with it for their own enjoyment.

Tornado Safety

Provided by your Nicholas County Emergency Management
Calvin Denton • 859-473-0309

There is no such thing as guaranteed safety inside a tornado. Prevention and practice before the storm: At home, have a family tornado plan in place, based on the kind of dwelling you live in and the safety tips below.

Know where you can take shelter in a matter of seconds, and practice a family tornado drill at least once a year. Have a pre-determined place to meet after a disaster. Flying debris is the greatest danger in tornadoes; so store protective coverings (e.g., mattress, sleeping bags, thick blankets, etc) in or next to your shelter space, ready to use on a few seconds' notice. When a tornado watch is issued, think about the drill and check to make sure all your safety supplies are handy. Turn on local TV, radio or NOAA Weather Radio and stay alert for warnings. Forget about the old notion of opening windows to equalize pressure; the tornado will blast open the windows for you! If you shop frequently at certain stores, learn where there are bathrooms, storage rooms or other interior shelter areas away from windows, and the shortest ways to get there. All administrators of schools, shopping centers, nursing homes, hospitals, sports arenas, stadiums, mobile home communities and offices should have a tornado safety plan in place, with easy-to-read signs posted to direct everyone to a safe, close-by shelter area. Schools and office building managers should regularly run well-coordinated drills. If you are planning to build a house, consider an underground tornado shelter or an interior "safe room".

Know the Signs of a Tornado

Weather forecasting science is not perfect and some tornadoes do occur without a tornado warning. There is no substitute for staying alert to the sky. Besides an obviously visible tornado, here are some things to look and listen for:

- ☛ Strong, persistent rotation in the cloud base.
- ☛ Whirling dust or debris on the ground under a cloud base -- tornadoes sometimes have no funnel!
- ☛ Hail or heavy rain followed by either dead calm or a fast, intense wind shift. Many tornadoes are wrapped in heavy precipitation and can't be seen.
- ☛ Day or night - Loud, continuous roar or rumble, this doesn't fade in a few seconds like thunder
- ☛ Night - Small, bright, blue-green to white flashes at ground level near a thunderstorm (as opposed to silvery lightning up in the clouds). These mean power lines are being snapped by very strong wind, maybe a tornado.
- ☛ Night - Persistent lowering from the cloud base, illuminated or silhouetted by lightning -- especially if it is on the ground or there is a blue-green-white power flash underneath.

What To Do

In a house with a basement: Avoid windows. Get in the basement and under some kind of sturdy protection (heavy table or work bench), or cover yourself with a mattress or sleeping bag. Know where very heavy objects rest on the floor above (pianos, refrigerators, waterbeds, etc.) and do not go under them. They may fall down through a weakened floor and crush you.

In a house with no basement, a dorm, or an apartment: Avoid windows. Go to the lowest floor, small center room (like a bathroom or closet), under a stairwell, or in an interior hallway with no windows. Crouch as low as possible to the floor, facing down; and cover your head with your hands. A bathtub may offer a shell of partial protection. Even in an interior room, you should cover yourself with some sort of thick padding (mattress, blankets, etc.), to protect against falling debris in case the roof and ceiling fail.

In an office building, hospital, nursing home or skyscraper: Go directly to an enclosed, windowless area in the center of the building -- away from glass. Then, crouch down and cover your head. Interior stairwells are usually good places to take shelter, and if not crowded, allow you to get to a lower level quickly. Stay off the elevators; you could be trapped in them if the power is lost.

In a mobile home: Get out! Even if your home is tied down, you are probably safer outside, even if the only alternative is to seek shelter out in the open. Most tornadoes can destroy even tied-down mobile homes; and it is best not to play the low odds that yours will make it. If your community has a tornado shelter, go there fast. If there is a sturdy permanent building within easy running distance, seek shelter there. Otherwise, lie flat on low ground away from your home, protecting your head. If possible, use open ground away from trees and cars, which can be blown onto you.

At school: Follow the drill! Go to the interior hall or room in an orderly way as you are told. Crouch low, head down, and protect the back of your head with your arms. Stay away from windows and large open rooms like gyms and auditoriums.

In a car or truck: Vehicles are extremely dangerous in a tornado. If the tornado is visible, far away, and the traffic is light, you may be able to drive out of its path by moving at right angles to the tornado. Otherwise, park the car as quickly and safely as possible -- out of the traffic lanes. Get out and seek shelter in a sturdy building. If in the open country, run to low ground away from any cars (which may roll over on you). Lie flat and facedown, protecting the back of your head with your arms. Avoid seeking shelter under bridges, which can create deadly traffic hazards while offering little protection against flying debris.

In the open outdoors: If possible, seek shelter in a sturdy building. If not, lie flat and facedown on low ground, protecting the back of your head with your arms. Get as far away from trees and cars as you can; they may be blown onto you in a tornado.

In a shopping mall or large store: Do not panic. Watch for others. Move as quickly as possible to an interior bathroom, storage room or other small-enclosed area, away from windows.

In a church or theater: Do not panic. If possible, move quickly but orderly to an interior bathroom or hallway, away from windows. Crouch facedown and protect your head with your arms. If there is no time to do that, get under the seats or pews, protecting your head with your arms or hands.

After The Tornado
Keep your family together and wait for emergency personnel to arrive. Carefully render aid to those who are injured. Stay away from power lines and puddles with wires in them; they may still be carrying electricity!

Watch your step to avoid broken glass, nails, and other sharp objects. Stay out of any heavily damaged houses or buildings; they could collapse at any time. Do not use matches or lighters, in case of leaking natural gas pipes or fuel tanks nearby. Remain calm and alert, and listen for information and instructions from emergency crews or local officials.

Appalachian Athletic Conference (AAC). In 2009, Union posted a 44-12 overall record and advanced to the NAIA Baseball National Championship Opening Round. Bart Osborne is in his seventh season as the head coach of the Union College baseball program. He took over the helm in July of 2003, making him the seventh person to hold the post since the sport was reinstated at the school in 1974. Osborne has compiled a 258-101 record during his first six seasons at Union, which included a pair of 48-win seasons in 2006 and 2008 to set the program record for wins in a season. In fact, after a 31-win season in his inaugural campaign in 2004, the Bulldogs have reeled off five consecutive 40-plus win seasons. In addition, the Bulldogs have posted a 97-37 record in Appalachian Athletic Conference play under Osborne and won the 2006 Appalachian Athletic Conference Tournament. Mynear helped lead Nicholas County to a runner-up finish in the 38th District last season. The Jackets went on to reach the 10th Region Tournament Semifinals.

MARCH Is it time you scheduled a colon cancer screening?

Are you a little chicken?

Don't be. Colon cancer screenings save lives. If everyone aged 50 years old or older were screened regularly, up to 60% of deaths from colorectal cancer could be avoided.

FIVE MYTHS ABOUT COLON CANCER

Colorectal cancer is a man's disease.

False: Colorectal cancer is just as common among women as men.

Colon cancer cannot be prevented.

False: Colon cancer almost always starts with a small growth called a polyp. Screening tests can find these polyps which can be removed, so colon cancer can be stopped before it starts.

African Americans are not at risk for colon cancer.

False: African-American men and women are diagnosed with and die from colon cancer at higher rates than any other US racial or ethnic group.

Age doesn't matter when it comes to getting colon cancer.

False: More than 90% of colon cancer cases occur in people age 50 and older. For this reason, the American Cancer Society recommends you start getting tested for the disease at age 50. It's better not to get tested for colon cancer because it's deadly anyway.

False: Colon cancer is often highly treatable. If it is found and treated early, the 5-year survival rate is 90%.

Flexible sigmoidoscopy
the doctor uses a thin, flexible tube with a tiny camera to examine the lower part of the colon.

Colonoscopy - similar to flexible sigmoidoscopy, but includes the entire colon.

Double-contrast barium enema - an X-ray test is used to picture the inside of the colon.

Fecal occult blood test (FOBT) - checks for blood in stool samples.

GAUNCE

My name is Emily Gaunce. I am running for the office of Nicholas County Coroner and want to let you know a little bit about myself. I am a native of Versailles, KY, and a graduate of Woodford County High School and Transylvania University. Nicholas County has been my home for 14 years. My husband is Brent Gaunce and we have 1 son, Will, a 9 year-old in the third grade at NCEMS. Our family owns Mathers-Gaunce Funeral Home and I have been involved in its operation for 12 years. Currently, I am attending the Des Moines Area Community College, working toward an Advanced Diploma in Mortuary Science this fall. I am also completing my Funeral Director's and Embalmer's apprenticeship with full licensure in December. I worked for a local attorney for 10 years and have been involved with several community groups. I've enjoyed being a parent representative on the Site-Based Decision Making Council at NCEMS for the past 2 years as well as being an active PTA and Cub Scout parent.

Some people will ask why I would want to serve as Nicholas County's Coroner. This is a job that I deeply respect and admire. I believe very strongly that this is an important commitment to our community, one I am ready and willing to make. Being Coroner is a great responsibility and I would never take that lightly. My goal is to provide competent, professional service and compassionate care to the people of Nicholas County in their most difficult of times.

Your consideration and support will be greatly appreciated.

GENERAL NEWS

OBITUARY

Criminal activity spreads across town

By Charles Mattox
News Editor
 charles@thecarlislemercury.com

Carlisle residents are finding out the hard way that brazen criminals will remove anything of value from residential and business property within the city limits. Sometimes, even if those items are located only a matter of a few hundred yards from the Carlisle Police Station.

Such was the case over the weekend when items were removed from a Carlisle residence and a Main Street business.

A Carlisle resident reported having a set of auto jumper cables stolen from their front porch over the weekend and the downtown business of Café on Main had two rocking chairs removed from the front of the business: A Main Street business that is situated less than 200 yards from the Carlisle Police Department.

"We've had those two rocking chairs sitting out front of the business for the past three years and never had a problem," Café on Main owner Ed Taylor said Monday morning.

Someone removed the two chairs late Sunday evening, or early Monday morning. "I'd sure like to get them back. I don't have any suspects in mind who would do this or have any suspicions, but I do believe whoever took them must have been in a truck."

The spike in downtown criminal activity has increased with the spring temperatures and an additional problem with young adults parking in lots of area businesses after hours has resulted in fewer and fewer businesses allowing anyone to loiter near their businesses after hours.

Carlisle chief of Police William Denton said he believed a proposed Neighborhood Watch Program in the city, which is currently being planned and organized by Carlisle Mayor Ronnie Clark and Chief Denton, would prove effective and Chief Denton praised the efforts of citizens who have reported suspicious activity to police officers and dispatch in the past. One such call resulted in the arrest of a Carlisle man who was located inside school property after officers were notified of suspicious activity at the school from a citizen.

Sean Carson, 31, of Carlisle was arrested at 11 p.m., on March 20 near the Nicholas County School Campus bus parking garage and was located inside fenced property on school grounds, according to Carson's arrest citation, issued by Carlisle Police Officer guy Turner.

Turner charged Carson with criminal trespassing, second degree and alcohol intoxication. Carson was found after a witness contacted police dispatch regarding seeing someone in an orange hoodie moving suspiciously across school grounds. Carson was wearing an orange hoodie when arrested.

Anyone with any information regarding criminal activity or suspicious activity is encouraged to contact the Carlisle Police Department at 289-3710.

Dwaine Curran for State Representative

My name is Dwaine Curran and I am a candidate for State Representative in the 72nd District of the Kentucky House which includes Nicholas, Bath, Bourbon, and a portion of Fayette Counties. I have three sons, Tyler 21, Ryder 11, and Hunter 10, and I am currently engaged to Sarai Pearce from Paris. I am a son of Nicholas County where I currently reside; I am a member of The Church of Jesus Christ of Latter Day Saints, the Veterans of Foreign Wars, the American Legion, the Disabled American Veterans, the YMCA, and the Carlisle Chamber of Commerce. I am a graduate of Nicholas County High School and Morehead State University where I earned degrees in Philosophy and Business. I am a U.S. Marine veteran of Desert Storm 1991 and Iraqi Freedom 2006. I have a small farm where I work to find a way to make a future. With all this experience I know the needs of this area well.

I feel the most important aspect of being a representative in legislation is for each constituent to know their legislature and feel that their voice is heard in Frankfort. I feel that it is important to be involved and to be well informed of critical issues that affect our state and local communities. Logical legislation can easily resolve many problems in today's society. All that is needed is for our ideas and resolutions to be properly presented and together we can put Kentucky first as we tread through these phenomenally difficult times.

I look forward to hearing from you, please visit my web site putkyfirst.com and together we can "put Kentucky first!" Thank you.

Couple arrested for auto theft

By Charles Mattox
News Editor
charles@thecarlislemercury.com

A Carlisle husband and wife were arrested Sunday and charged with theft by unlawful taking of an automobile. Michael Eads, 25, and his wife Celia Joyce Eads, 29, both of Carlisle were arrested by Carlisle Police Officer Bennie Buckler and charged with the theft. Court documents indicate the alleged stolen auto belonged to family members of Michael Eads. Arrest citations issued to the couple indicate that after taking the vehicle they did return it to the owner's home and the owner initially did not desire to press charges, but later changed his mind, according to the arrest citation. According to the arrest citation, the couple admitted having a "substance abuse problem."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

Dear Editor,

I have bragged for years about how nice it is to live in a small town where people are neighborly and I feel safe to leave chairs on my porch, my car unlocked etc. I was saddened to learn this morning that someone had removed our rocking chairs from the front porch. I feel violated and disappointed. I will now wonder when I see folks if they might be the "one". I will have to stop bragging. I hope that the chairs will be returned. One of them was lent to me by a friend who was given it for a retirement gift. (She has neither a porch or any intention of sitting around rocking in her retirement.). My daughter says that I should hang a sign on the porch saying "To the person who borrowed our rocking chairs: Please return them as we will be having company this weekend and will need them." Perhaps I should follow her advice.

Regretfully,
Jan Taylor

MARCH 24th is the American Diabetes Alert Day

Are you or a loved one at risk for Diabetes?

Nearly 24 million children and adults in the United States have diabetes. Nearly one-quarter of those do not know they have diabetes. One in five Americans is at risk for developing type 2 diabetes.

Diabetes is called the "silent killer" because nearly one-fourth of those with the disease- 5.7 million- do not know they have it.

For many, diagnosis may come seven to ten years after the onset of the disease. Early diagnosis is critical to successful treatment and delaying or preventing some of its complications such as heart disease, blindness, kidney disease, stroke, amputation and death.

What are the risk factors for Type 2 Diabetes?

Being Overweight
Living a sedentary lifestyle
Being over the age of 45

African Americans, Latinos, Native Americans, and people who have a family history of the disease are at an increased risk for type 2 diabetes.

Go to www.diabetes.org or call 1-888-877-7798 to request a physician referral.

GENERAL NEWS

RC&D nets local project assistance

At its January meeting Licking River Valley Resource Conservation and Development (RC&D) members affected formal action to award mini grants and technical assistance for several project activities in the 8-county region it serves. RC&D has three goal areas it pursues that were arrived at through the area planning process. All the activities approved are correlated with the area plan strategies. Mini grants were awarded in the amount of $1600 for a girls bathing cage/fast pitch in Bourbon County, $900 for improvements and repair of a wetland environmental classroom at Ward Elementary School in Fleming County, $150 for a soil stewardship breakfast with the Nicholas County Conservation District, and $1000 for improvements at the middle school recreation field in Bracken County. For Harrison County technical assistance was granted for development of grant proposals for a recreational trails grant for a $65,500 project at Flat Run Veterans Park, a waste tire (crumb rubber) grant for $6,900, and funding a farm products brochure. The waste tire and recreational trails grants are now under competitive ranking and review in Frankfort. Follow up approval was given for assistance with a Harrison County $1000 Bluegrass PRIDE grant previously awarded in January. Also, follow up approval was given for technical assistance with developing a site drawing for the spectator deck established at River Road Park. Moreover, follow up approval was assigned for continuation of the Flat Run Environmental Project (FREP) awarded through the 3M Foundation for $20,000 and Kentucky Healthy Communities Project (KHCP). The Kentucky

Healthy Communities Project is associated with the WEDCO District Health Department and was funded for $35,000. The FREP and KHCP will net visible community benefits for Flat Run Veterans Park. Those beneficial attributes will include the addition of a playground, a 2-man air walker, and a 3-man leg press, all of which have been purchased, and are pending installation in 2010. The FREP will also involve paving the nature trail, a tree planting demonstration, and establishment with identification of native trees at Flat Run

Veterans Park. In Carlisle, arrangements are underway to investigate the Carlisle and Henryville Cemeteries in 2010 with ground radar to locate any potential unmarked graves to support cultural resources. Ground radar will be provided courtesy of USDA-NRCS. The concluding agreed-upon activities will involve a demonstration for stabilizing steam bank erosion problems and constructing a wetland cell that will have a dual purpose for livestock water. In recent developments, RC&D provided technical assistance for the composition of an emergency action plan for Stockton Lake in Fleming County which is now being circulated for appropriate signatures.

RC&D pursues the improvement and establishment of community and natural resource projects. The volunteer members are assisted by the Natural Resources Conservation Service that furnishes technical assistance. The RC&D area includes Bourbon, Bracken, Fleming, Harrison, Mason, Nicholas, Pendleton, and Robertson Counties. Local sponsors include conservation districts, farm bureau, fiscal courts, cities, and Cynthia-Harrison County United Community Fund. RC&D overview is available on the internet at kyrcd.org or http://www.kyrnet.net/kyrcd/lrv.html. This brief news item is intended to summarize areas where RC&D has provided recent assistance.

Fleming school death threat investigation continues

By Charles Mattox
News Editor
charles@thecarlislemercury.com

An alleged threat to "shoot and kill" high school students remains under investigation by school and law enforcement officials.

Although the alleged threat originated from Fleming County High School, school officials remain tight lipped. "No comment" was the only two words stated on the record made by Fleming County High School, Principal Jinny Hurdle and Assistant Principal Gene Peterson, regarding the alleged death threats. School Resource Officer, Fleming County Deputy Sheriff Robert Orem was reluctant to speak on the record due to the allegations involving a juvenile, but did say "an investigation continues."

Community and other law enforcement sources told the FCN that the incident began when a female juvenile high school student said she would like to "line everyone at the school in front of their graves and shoot them all." Sources say the student has been suspended and law enforcement sources say if charges have been lodged or may be in the future, the charge would most likely be terroristic threatening, second degree.

The incident allegedly occurred on March 12 at FCHS.

KSP releases statistics

Preliminary statistics* indicate that five people died in five separate crashes on Kentucky roadways from Monday, March 15 through Sunday, March 21, 2010. Two of the crashes involved motor vehicles and neither of those victims were wearing seat belts. Single-fatality crashes occurred in Fayette and Jefferson counties. Three of the crashes involved motorcycles and none of those victims were wearing helmets. Those crashes occurred in Barren, McCracken and Todd counties. The suspected use of alcohol was a factor in the Barren County crash. Through March 21, preliminary statistics* indicate that 121 people have lost their lives on Kentucky roadways during 2010. This is 35 less fatalities than reported for the same time period in 2009. There were 104 motor vehicle fatalities and 59 of those victims were not wearing seat belts. Thirteen of those crashes involved a commercial motor vehicle. Twelve fatal crashes involved a pedestrian and 1 involved a scooter. Three crashes involved a motorcycle and none of the victims were wearing helmets. One

Campaign signs will be removed from state right of way

Signs block motorists' vision, pose hazards for drivers and workers

As the political campaign season heats up, Kentucky Department of Highways crews face an increasing number of campaign signs on the state highway right of way — signs that must be removed for safety purposes.

Acting State Highway Engineer Steve Waddle said state highway workers are required to remove and discard hundreds of signs during each election cycle. The signs can pose hazards for drivers and for maintenance crews.

way often restrict sight distance near intersections and create a hazard in the 'clear zone,' which is the recovery area for motorists who run off the road," Waddle said. "They also interfere with maintenance activities such as roadside mowing, which will be starting soon."

Kentucky law and Transportation Cabinet policy prohibit the placement of political or other advertising signs on state right of way, including signs attached to utility poles within the state right of way.

Illegal signs will be moved to the state highway garage in each county and kept for two weeks. Owners may claim them by showing identification and completing a claim form. Unclaimed signs will be discarded.

"Employees who are removing signs are acting in the best interest of all motorists and of maintenance crews," Waddle said. "We appreciate the public's cooperation and understanding."

Citizens can contribute to highway safety by reporting erratic drivers to the Kentucky State Police toll-free at 1-800-222-5555. Callers will remain anonymous and should give a description of the vehicle, location, direction of travel and license number if possible.

*These statistics are still preliminary as KSP waits for all local law enforcement agencies throughout the state to report any crashes and fatalities that may have occurred in their areas. Crash data for this report is generated from the Kentucky Fatality Analysis Reporting System (FARS).

Cancer will not define me. I prefer the term "survivor."

"I get the diagnosis, and I can let the cancer defeat me. Or I can seek the best cancer treatment available, and tackle this thing head on. The cancer care at Harrison Memorial Hospital allows me to do just that."

UK-trained oncologist Dr. James Morgan and a whole host of oncologists and researchers from University of Kentucky Markey Cancer Center provide world-class treatment here in Cynthiana. And our new chemotherapy/infusion therapy suites are staffed by our own certified infusion therapy nurses.

Less travel for chemotherapy. Access to the region's best care. Surviving cancer won't be easy. Luckily, choosing the right hospital will be.

Judge Tincher named Chairman of Bluegrass Area Development District

By Charles Mattox
News Editor
charles@thecarlislemercury.com

The Bluegrass Area Development District (ADD) held its 2010 Annual meeting and elected new officers to serve the region.

Nicholas County Judge-Executive Larry Tincher was elected as the chair to oversee the 17-county entity.

"I'm very honored to be named Chairman of the Bluegrass ADD," Judge Tincher said. "I'm very supportive of the goals and objectives of the Bluegrass ADD and will work hard to ensure that Nicholas County will be included in all of the regional projects we undertake. We are working on several regional enhancement projects right now."

Judge Tincher is the only Nicholas County native to have ever served as the Chair of the Bluegrass ADD and formerly served as the Treasurer of that entity.

The Bluegrass ADD

Judge-Executive Larry Tincher

is the largest ADD in the state with Nicholas being one of the smallest county's in the group, which further enhances the honor for Tincher.

Richmond Mayor Connie Lawson was elected Vice Chair.

Bourbon County Judge-Executive Donnie Foley was elected Secretary and Lawrenceburg Mayor Edwina Baker was elected Treasurer.

Two distinguished awards were presented: The Shelby Combs Distinguished Service Award went to honorable Dodd Dixon, outgoing Chairman and Former Winchester Mayor.

The Third Bluegrass Visionary Award was presented to Mr. Don Hassall an employee of 38 years who developed and implemented a vision for the public utility systems in the 17-county district.

The Bluegrass Area Development District is a quasi-governmental unit responsible for the planning and development of the 17-county central Kentucky region. Formed in 1972, the Bluegrass ADD has a Board of Directors made up of 17 county judge-executives, 21 mayors and 37 citizen directors.

The Bluegrass ADD, one of 15 ADDs in Kentucky, assisting units of local government in applying for, receiving and properly accounting for federal and state grants and loans. The Bluegrass ADD administers the Workforce Investment Act and the Older American Act for the region as well as providing long range planning assistance for the growth of the communities.
